Gives 'Boost' To Business

... IN FLORIDA 'CAMPAIGN'

Miami Beach, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy said Monday night the United States will live up to its commitments to the Alliance for Progress because it offers the only route to "progress without despotism, social justice without social terror."

In an address before the Inter American Press Association, Kennedy said the alliance is the Western Hemisphere's hope for a decent standard of living and "a common dedication to freedom."

He warned members of the alliance that communism is struggling "to extend its rule to other nations of the hemisphere" outside Cuba, and he called on them to support measures to halt this infiltration.

No Mention

The President made no mention of Argentina's annulment of millions of dollars in contracts with American oil producers, but he commented that "every country is free to shape its economic institutions in accordance with its own national needs."

"However," he added, "just as no country can tell another how it must order its economy, no nation should act within its own borders so as to violate the rights of others under accepted principles of international law."

This was in line with his acceptance at a news conference last Thursday of Argentina's right to annul the contracts, and his insistence that there must be fair compensation to the affected firms.

Friendly Hand

Before coming to Miami Beach, Kennedy toured the Tampa area with a friendly hand extended to businessmen, a finger in the political winds, and a defense of his civil rights program.

Much of the time, he sounded and looked like a candidate for another term in the White House, in a state he lost by a narrow margin in 1960.

Before the Florida State Chamber of Commerce at Tampa, Kennedy spoke up for harmony rather than hostility between business and the administration and said he is not "out to soak the rich." Businessmen are welcome at the White House, he said.

Expansion

He is interested, the President said, in "the healthy expansion of our entire society and it is this kind of program, in my opinion, in which American business has the largest stake."

During the course of four speeches in the Tampa area, Kennedy also produced a vague prediction that, by the end of the century, airliners will be speeding at many times the speed of sound.

And, speaking in an area where Communist domination of Cuba is a matter of immediate concern, the President called Fidel Castro's regime still "a major danger" and conceded that the United States has not been able to remove him from power.

Fidel Faded

But he said efforts of the United States and other Western Hemisphere nations to "isolate the virus of communism" in Cuba had "achieved some measure of success," and he argued that Castro has "faded badly" as a revolutionary symbol.

Kennedy got a warm reception at his appearances in Tampa. Moving at candidate speed, he made some departures from his prepared texts to inject political overtones, even though the White House had tied a non-political tag to the tour.

He got a long, noisy standing ovation from the State Chamber of Commerce, and drew vigorous applause when he said that during the last 18 months the growth rate of this country has exceeded that of France or Germany.

He also was applauded when he put in a plug for the tax cut bill and said it would help to bring about the strongest peacetime expansion in national history.

In response to questions as to why he was pushing his civil rights program so hard, he let it be known that he intends to keep right on pushing, even though "I know it has not been getting great support here in Florida."

By way of balance, the President followed up the address to the businessmen in Fort Homer Hesterly Armory by scheduling the next one to a labor union audience at Tampa's International Inn.

Briefing

In advance of the Chamber of Commerce speech, he received a briefing at MacDill Air Force Base on the outskirts of Tampa on operations of the U.S. Strike Command.

This is a new, highly mobile, hard-hitting force made up of elements of the Army, Navy and Air Force and capable of striking anywhere in the world.

Then he spun off by helicopter to Al Lopez baseball field. It was in the ball park that the President went into verbal orbit about the future of flying.

The occasion: A ceremony celebrating the 50th anniversary of the world's first airline service, between nearby St. Petersburg and Tampa. Tony Jannus flew the route at 60 M.P.H. in 1914.

In a text prepared for the aviation ceremony, Kennedy had envisioned the time when men would routinely fly at 15,000 miles an hour. In delivering the talk, he dropped his reference. Instead, he spoke of airliners that soon would travel five times faster than sound and, "by the end of the century, many more times than that."

Speaking before an enthusiastic crowd of 8,000 at the ball park in Tampa, he made other departures from the text, and finally it became more of a political speech than one on aviation.

—McNAMARA REVEALS POWER— U.S. Tells Reds What They Face

New York (AP) — The United States has let the Soviet Union know that it has 400 million tons of nuclear force on tap in Europe, ready to be used in whatever quantity needed.

The official word came Monday from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in a major policy speech understood to have been coordinated with the White House and State Department.

The timing and tenor of the address to the Economic Club of New York made it obvious that this was a cold response to recent truculent talk by Soviet Premier Khrushchev. Reassurance

It was intended also as new reassurance for Allies concerned about speculation of U.S. troop withdrawal from Europe.

In the latest showdown on the Berlin autobahn, Khrushchev muttered menacingly about nuclear button-pushing. And there has been more Moscow growling about Soviet interests in Cuba.

The mighty nuclear potential — expressed in terms of TNT equivalent — in Europe is essentially in relatively small tactical weapons. It does not include the untold hundreds of millions of tons of TNT equivalent in missiles and bombs of the strategic forces, based in the United States, or in Polaris submarines deployed within range of Soviet targets.

Preparedness

McNamara's speech also covered defense preparedness on a worldwide basis and weapons systems for massive as well as little wars.

"Today the thousands of U.S. warheads deployed in the Continent for the immediate defense of Europe have a combined explosive strength more than 10,000 times the force of the nuclear weapons used to end the second war," he said. McNamara didn't reduce this to terms of tonnage.

Obvious

However these factors are obvious: The bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki in the final days of the war each had a yield of about 20 kilotons — the equivalent of 20,000 tons of energy produced by conventional TNT detonation. This meant that the total tonnage was 40,000 tons. With this yardstick, the total yield for the thousands of warheads deployed in Europe would be 400 million tons or 400 megatons.

McNamara said that it must be the policy to continue to strengthen U.S. combat effectiveness.

"I do not regard the present Communist leaders as wholly reckless in action. But recent experience, in Cuba and on a lesser scale in Berlin, has not persuaded me that I can predict with any confidence the sorts of challenges that Communist leaders will come to think prudent and profitable. If they were again to miscalculate as dangerously as they did a year ago, it would be essential to confront them, wherever that might be, with the full consequences of their action: The certainty of meeting immediate, appropriate and fully effective military action," he said.

Obsolete Images

McNamara discussed, too, what he called some "obsolete images" of relative manpower strengths between the Communist and free world.

In 1955, Soviet armed strength was 5.75 million men; today it is 3.3 million. Total strength for all the Warsaw Pact nations, including the Soviet Union, now is only about 4.5 million. Total manpower for all North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations is over 5 million. NATO ground forces have 3.2 million, of which 2.2 are in Europe, as against Soviet ground forces of about 2 million and a Warsaw Pact total of about 3 million.

NATO has more combat troops on the ground in central-western Europe than does the bloc, has "more and better tactical aircraft and these planes on the average can carry twice the payload twice as far as the Soviet counterparts." He then added that "none of this is to say that NATO strength on the ground is adequate" to turn back without nuclear weapons an all-out surprise non-nuclear attack.

Mean War

But, said McNamara, "aggression on this scale would mean a war about the future of Europe, of the United States, and the U.S.S.R."

"In the face of threats of that magnitude, our nuclear superiority remains highly relevant to deterrence," he said. "The probability that the Soviet leaders would choose to invoke that nuclear exchange seems to me very low indeed. They know well what even the Chinese Communist leaders must recognize upon further reflection—that a nuclear war would mean destruction of everything they have built up for themselves during the past 50 years."

Dynamite Found In Barn

... LAFB TEAM REMOVES MILFORD HAZARD

Thirty two sticks of dynamite, found in a Milford barn often used as a playhouse by neighborhood children, have been taken to Lincoln Air Force Base for disposal.

The barn, located near an alley at the rear of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brooks, apparently housed the deteriorating box of explosives for more than three years.

Mrs. Brooks told The Star her husband found the box on a shelf while cleaning the barn Sunday night. He did not attempt to move it.

Monday Mrs. Brooks called Milford Day Marshal W. G. Rummel and asked what dynamite looks like. He described the explosive and she told him of the box.

Real Thing

When Rummel investigated he determined that it "looked like the real thing, so I called the Lincoln Air Force Base for help."

The base sent a two-man demolition team, two officers and a photographer. The team confirmed the box contained dynamite.

Chief M. Sgt. Richard Doughty and Staff Sgt. Rex Beene removed the dynamite. Eight families living on the block were evacuated during the operation.

Sgt. Doughty said there was no way to determine if the dynamite was dangerous. "It may be completely inert—or it may be super-sensitive," he said.

Put In Barrels

Sgts. Doughty and Beene placed the dynamite in cushioned barrels and, escorted by state patrolmen, drove slowly to the base.

It was not definitely known how long the dynamite had been in the barn. The property formerly belonged to William Klein, who had owned a hardware store and had used the old barn for a storage shed.

Rummel said the barn had been locked up since Klein's death "some years ago," until neighborhood children invaded it.

Farm Bureau Chief Appeals For Unity, Hits Wheat Sale

Charles Marshall, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, issued an appeal for farm solidarity Monday night.

Addressing about 600 members from 87 counties, Marshall said the need for farm unity "will become more critical in the years ahead as the number of farms decline and urban forces become more and more powerful."

"Faced with the power of big government, big business and big labor, farmers and ranchers are small peanuts indeed, except when they speak with a united voice," he added.

Appeals For Support

Marshall appealed for "financial and moral" support for farm organizations.

The Farm Bureau president also took a crack at the sale of wheat to Russia, declaring that the method of sale by-passed Congress. He said this was probably as important from a standpoint of philosophy as the sale itself "because it changed the U.S. relationship with communistic countries."

He recalled that during World War II the slogan was "food will win the war and write the peace." Now, he said, our leaders tell us that food is not a weapon in the cold war so "it can't hurt us to sell to the communists."

Turning to the proposed federal tax cut, Marshall said, "Everybody wants the tax cut, but such action needs a good close look, especially on the part of farmers and ranchers. If the tax cut is at the expense of a national deficit increase, the cost comes out of the pockets of farmers and ranchers in the cheaper dollars which result from inflationary trends."

Marshall said the Farm Bureau Federation was successful on 30 of 51 bills it took a position on during the last session of the Legislature.

Failed on Tax

However, he added, "we did fail again on the broadened tax base. It will be more difficult to get the tax base broadened at the next and future sessions because reapportionment of the Legislature has weakened rural influence and increased the influence of urban forces."

The federation is considering changing its name. The name change was tabled when it was brought up a year ago.

Mentioned as a possibility for the new title is "Nebraska Farm and Ranch Bureau." But Marshall said some members who earlier had favored a change have decided to oppose it on grounds the state group would lose the benefit of identity with the national organization, the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Resolutions dealing with state level affairs will be considered Tuesday, with national affairs resolutions coming up Wednesday.

Air Pollution Law Meets Opposition

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A proposed Lincoln air pollution ordinance met stiff opposition from the Chamber of Commerce and local industries Monday.

The City Council deferred action on the proposed measure following public hearing, but indicated efforts would be undertaken to develop a "reasonably acceptable and enforceable" code for the city.

Dr. George Underwood of the City-County Health Department said the city is "at the mean average" of the nation's communities, but "preventative measures should be undertaken to prevent future problems."

Only By Reaction

As to the "obnoxious odor" provisions proposed, Dr. Underwood suggested such odors "can't be measured scientifically, but only by mass reaction."

Another health official said "some local areas definitely need controls" and the "general situation over the whole community wouldn't be allowed to worsen."

Willard Townsend said the Chamber of Commerce is opposed to an air pollution ordinance until "a need is shown" and a scientific study is undertaken to tailor requirements to the local situation.

Under council questioning, Townsend conceded an ordinance is needed, but "not as severe as proposed."

Study Recommended

and a joint committee representing the city and industry "to cooperatively develop a realistic ordinance."

Also appearing in opposition were representatives of the Nebraska Public Power System, Havelock Shops, Swingle & Co., Northwestern Metal Co. and American Stores' packing plant division.

Irvin Bunkin said West O businessmen want an ordinance regulating odors. "You don't need a machine to tell you something smells, just ask the people who work and live in the West O area," he said.

City Atty. Ralph Nelson said the proposed ordinance setting minimum standards for smoke abatement and the discharge of air-borne particles or dust was modeled after codes used in other cities and recommended by several engineering societies.

Similar Opposition

He noted Pittsburgh has a 0.50 standard for particle matter as compared with the less-restrictive standard of .65 proposed for Lincoln.

An attempt to enact an air pollution measure over a year ago met similar industrial and Chamber opposition.

Tender Care From 'Kidnaper'

A three-year-old girl whose father was jailed for stealing her from a hospital last week, is reunited, above, with the father, Robert J. Moreland 30, after a Los Angeles judge ordered her released from a juvenile home until doctors can determine why four days away from the father caused her to lapse into a lethargy resembling sleeping sickness. The child, Sanci Ann Moreland, center of a divorce and custody suit between her parents, was hospitalized for encephalitis when the father removed her without authority. They were caught, the father going to jail and she to the juvenile home. He is now out on bail.

Mom Says Professor Treated Like 'Jailbird'

New Haven, Conn. (AP) — Yale University Prof. Frederick Barghoorn's mother said Monday he was handcuffed by Soviet police who arrested him, and while in captivity in Moscow was "treated like a jailbird."

The mother, who finally got to spend some time with her son after his return home Sunday, said he lost weight on Russian prison food and added:

"I'm very elated that he's back, even though he is much lighter than he was when he left here."

Barghoorn's mother said the Soviets tried to make him out a spy; but she declared:

"His 'unpardonable sin' was that he could speak Russian and that he could understand what the people said when he heard them speaking."

Yale President Kingman Brewster Jr. flew back from Italy for a rally Monday night in Barghoorn's honor. He said of the Yale professor:

"Your modesty, decency and integrity kept all our minds uncluttered by any vestige of doubt."

Barghoorn repeated his denial at the rally that he was a spy. He said he was grateful for the support he received from scholars.

"Who could be a better judge of whether I was involved in scholarly activity than the scholarly community itself," he said.

About 2,500 Yale students, faculty and townspeople attended the rally, which originally had been planned to protest the professor's arrest on spy charges. When he was released, the rally was changed to a celebration.

At the same time, a department spokesman said no decision has yet been made about sending a U.S. mission to Moscow to negotiate a new cultural exchange agreement. The negotiators were originally slated to have left last week but canceled the trip after Barghoorn's arrest.

Press officer Richard I. Phillips said the Yale University professor, who returned to his New Haven, Conn., home Sunday, will arrive in Washington Tuesday morning for consultation with U.S. officials.

Washington (AP) — Frederick C. Barghoorn will come to Washington to tell the State Department Tuesday morning about his 16-day imprisonment in Russia.

Dr. George Underwood of the City-County Health Department said the city is "at the mean average" of the nation's communities, but "preventative measures should be undertaken to prevent future problems."

Only By Reaction
As to the "obnoxious odor" provisions proposed, Dr. Un-

Awnings-Estimates
Lincoln Tent HE2-1977.—Adv.

derwood suggested such odors "can't be measured scientifically, but only by mass reaction."

Another health official said "some local areas definitely need controls" and the "general situation over the whole community shouldn't be allowed to worsen."

Willard Townsend said the Chamber of Commerce is opposed to an air pollution ordinance until "a need is shown" and a scientific study is undertaken to tailor requirements to the local situation.

Under council questioning, Townsend conceded an ordinance is needed, but "not as severe as proposed."

Study Recommended

and a joint committee representing the city and industry "to cooperatively develop a realistic ordinance."

Also appearing in opposition were representatives of the Nebraska Public Power System, Havelock Shops, Swingle & Co., Northwestern Metal Co. and American Stores' packing plant division.

Irvin Bukin said West O businessmen want an ordinance regulating odors. "You don't need a machine to tell you something smells, just ask the people who work and live in the West O area," he said.

City Atty. Ralph Nelson said the proposed ordinance setting minimum standards for smoke abatement and the discharge of air-borne particles or dust was modeled after codes used in other cities and recommended by several engineering societies.

Similar Opposition

He noted Pittsburgh has a 0.50 standard for particle matter as compared with the less-restrictive standard of .65 proposed for Lincoln.

An attempt to enact an air pollution measure over a year ago met similar industrial and Chamber opposition.

Chinese Say Nik Bible-Reading, Psalm-Singing Servant Of U.S.

Tokyo (AP) — The Red Chinese called Premier Khrushchev a Bible-reading, psalm-singing servant of the United States Monday and claimed he didn't appreciate that Red China sacrificed itself in the Korean War to avert a direct U.S.-Soviet clash.

In the latest chapter of the running Soviet-Chinese ideological dispute, the Chinese also accused the Russians of bluffing when they threaten to use nuclear weapons to support revolutionary struggles. Presumably, the Chinese had the October 1962 Cuban crisis in mind but they did not say so.

The Chinese made their claims in an 18,000-character article appearing identically in the official Peking People's Daily and Red Flag, a theoretical journal. The article repudiated Soviet charges that Peking sought to push the Soviet Union into a nuclear war with the West.

Impermissible

The Chinese replied that they considered it absolutely impermissible that the Soviet Union should be the first to use nuclear weapons in a conventional war involving the West or in a revolution that the West was trying to stop.

The article also claimed that Red Chinese military forces averted a U.S.-Soviet war in 1958 when they opened the constant bombardment of the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu off the China mainland. This clash became known as the "Battle of Formosa Strait."

Listing all that the Chinese said they had done to preserve peace, the article told Soviet leaders:

"You had better cut out your sensation-mongering calumny. The Chinese Communist Party is firmly opposed to a 'head-on clash' between the Soviet Union and the United States, and not in words only. In deeds, too, it has worked hard to avert direct armed conflict between them. Examples of this are the Korean War against U.S. aggression in which we fought side by side with the Korean comrades and our struggle against the United States in Taiwan (Formosa) Strait."

Preferred

"We ourselves preferred to shoulder the heavy sacrifices necessary and stood in the first line of defense of the socialist (communist) camp so that the Soviet Union might stay in the second line. Have the leaders of the CPSU (Soviet Communist Party) a sense of proletarian morality when they concoct such lies? In fact it is not we, but the leaders of the CPSU who have frequently boasted that they would use nuclear weapons to help the anti-imperialist struggle of one country or another."

The Chinese statements appeared to bear out a theory that the Russians, who were present in North Korea at the time, encouraged the Korean Reds to invade South Korea, then asked the Chinese to intervene in 1951 when the attackers suffered severe reverses.

Possibility

If the Russians had taken part they faced the possibility of being ousted from the United Nations, in which China is not a member.

Similar Russian intervention in the Formosa Strait might have touched off a U.S.-Soviet clash.

The Chinese said that Russia's threats to use nuclear weapons to support revolutionary struggles was an attempt to gain "cheap prestige" with "empty statements which they never intend to honor."

The Chinese polemic, an omnibus criticism of Khrushchev's ideas on war and peace, left no doubt that the Chinese-Soviet dispute remains far from settled.

Peace Champion

"Khrushchev may confer on himself such titles as 'a great peace champion,' award himself a peace prize and pin heroes' medals on himself, but no matter how much he may praise himself, he will not be able to cover up his dangerous practice of recklessly playing with nuclear weapons or his fawning before imperialist nuclear blackmail," it said.

The Chinese criticized Khrushchev's cooperation with the United States and said "the U.S. imperialists are the wildest militarists of modern times, the wildest plotters of a new world war."

"It is thus clear that the U.S. imperialists have not become beautiful angels in spite of Khrushchev's Bible-reading and psalm-singing; they have not turned into compassionate Buddhists in spite of Khrushchev's prayers and incense-burning. However hard Khrushchev tries to serve the U.S. imperialists, they show not the slightest appreciation."

"They continue to expose their own peace camouflage by fresh and numerous activities of aggression and war, and thus they continue to slap Khrushchev in the face and reveal the bankruptcy of his ridiculous theories prettifying imperialism. The lot of the willing apologists of U.S. imperialism is indeed a sorry one."

MORNING BLAZE . . . consumes Surfside Hotel, foreground, leaving tangled mass.

Predawn Blaze Claims At Least 9; 16 Missing

Atlantic City, N. J. (AP) — At least nine persons died and 16 were missing and feared dead in an estimated million dollar blaze Monday night that spread from a frame hotel for elderly guests to a row of closed hotels near the famed Atlantic City boardwalk.

A woman victim died at Atlantic City hospital. The others, none identified, were among 24 persons police listed as unaccounted for.

All had been guests at one hotel, the Surfside, where the fire started. Police and firemen picked their way through the Surfside's debris with a huge crane Monday night in search of other victims.

"Some of the people may have scammed out and have not reported," said acting Fire Prevention Chief Michael Bloomberg. Bloomberg, who estimated the damage, also said the cause of the fire was not known.

The FBI in Washington said it was sending a three-man identification team here at the request of police, to help identify fire victims through their fingerprints.

The fire spread from the Surfside to buildings on both sides, collapsing walls and roofs and showering flaming rubble to the street. Sparks touched off other buildings. More than 200 firemen worked to keep the fire from spreading.

Five hotel buildings and one rooming house were destroyed, four other buildings damaged.

A family of seven including the owners of the Surfside jumped from a window about 15 feet from the ground. A woman, her hair sizzling, raced down a hallway and crawled through a window onto a porch roof to be rescued by firemen.

Two firemen used tin garbage pail covers to ward off sparks and climbed a ladder to rescue a screaming woman from her room.

7-NATION UNIT TO HANDLE DESERT FIGHT

... But Morocco, Algeria May Not Accept Decisions

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia (AP) — Independent Africa's foreign ministers named a seven-nation committee Monday to adjudicate the Sahara border dispute between Algeria and Morocco and called on both countries to bow to its verdict.

Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika and Ahmed Reda Guedira of Morocco shook hands in the glare of television lights and pledged to respect the continent's quest for brotherhood and unity.

But spokesmen indicated the two countries will be willing to accept decisions of the committee as binding only if they correspond to their own interests.

Back Charter

A final resolution adopted at the end of a 32-nation council of foreign ministers of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) called on the two North African nations to live up to the African charter signed here six months ago. The resolution particularly mentioned parts dealing with territorial integrity of Africa's new states and noninterference in their internal affairs.

The seven-nation group, officially described as an arbitration committee, is to determine guilt in the desert war, the first among Africa's free nations. Fighting was halted by a Nov. 2 cease-fire.

It appeared doubtful the committee will be able to solve the dispute and impose its will on the two North African nations.

Proved

Nevertheless, diplomats of independent Africa hailed the decision as proving this emerging continent's ability to solve its own problems and avoid outside interference.

The seven nations on the committee are Ethiopia, Mali, Ivory Coast, Senegal, Sudan, Tanganyika and Nigeria. All have been described by Algeria and Morocco as neutral.

Acting Foreign Minister Ketema Yifru of Ethiopia worked hard, late into the morning hours to obtain agreement of members of the seven-nation committee. The conference deadlocked Saturday after Algeria and Morocco accused each other of aggression.

Survived

Now, so far as Africans are concerned, their fledgling Organization of African Unity has survived its first important test. Impartial diplomats express belief, however, that the main accomplishment of the conference was theoretical rather than practical and its impact more moral than political.

The seven nations are to determine who launched the first attack on the sand-covered oasis of Hassi Beida in the Sahara. The committee also is supposed to determine whether the Kingdom of Morocco is right in demanding that Algeria cede territories which Morocco says France attached to it while both nations were under French rule. Algeria has never denied the piecemeal annexations. But it insists it will defend frontiers given to it at independence 18 months ago.

An Algerian spokesman said his country's contribution to the committee's work "will be based on the principle of nonrevision of the frontier."

Morocco's official position is that the frontier south of the oasis of Figuig has never been properly defined, according to international regulations. It has been only recently that the now disputed area has been worth fighting about, following discovery of iron and other mineral deposits.

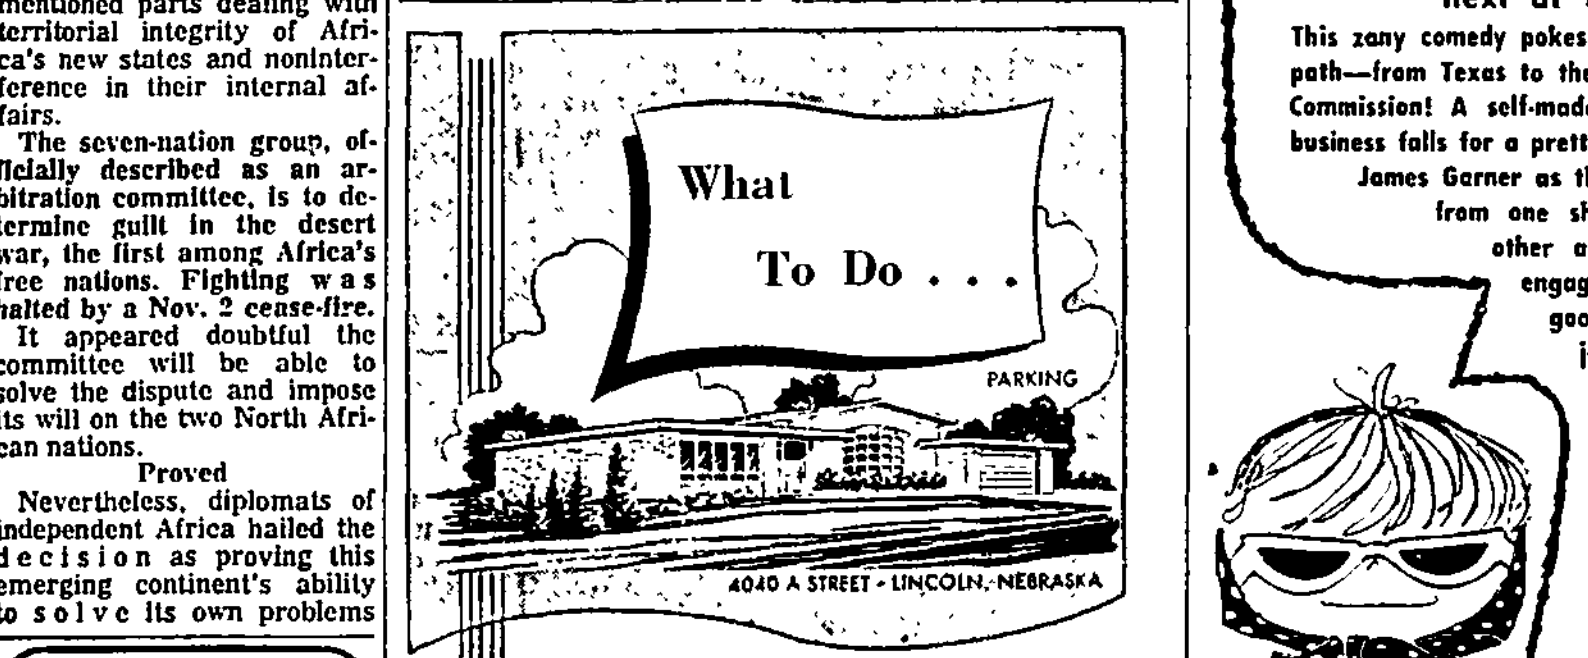

While expressing sympathy for the Moroccans, many African nations do not approve of their territorial claims. Any formal justification of these claims could create a touchy precedent on a continent where half a dozen border disputes are simmering.

But Moroccan officials say they consider appointment of the committee a first-round victory in their frontier claims.

"The fact that the committee was named proves that the frontier problem exists and that Africa agrees on it," a member of the Moroccan delegation declared.

Court Delays Decision

... ON SIT-IN CONVICTIONS

Washington (AP) — In the face of insistent pressures for early federal legislation on civil rights, the Supreme Court put off Monday for at least 60 days its decision on sit-in convictions.

This decision has been awaited by some members of Congress and by the executive branch as a guide on the controversial public accommodations question on which the sit-ins focus. The public accommodations section forbids discrimination by privately owned businesses is perhaps the most hotly disputed point of the administration's pending program.

But the justices, splitting 5 to 4, decided to ask for added expressions of views on the broad constitutional question involved in the sit-in arrests. That is: Can state trespass laws be used against Negroes, or others, who stage sit-in demonstrations when a businessman refuses to serve the and asks them to leave?

Narrow

When the cases were argued Oct. 14-15, the solicitor general's lawyer said the Justice Department did not believe the court need reach this broad question. He said the cases could be decided "on the basis of relatively narrow and well settled principles of constitutional adjudication."

But the lawyer said "should the court disagree and desire an expression of the views of the United States upon reargument, we would be prepared to make a full statement."

A majority of the justices accepted the offer Monday and gave Solicitor General Archibald Cox 30 days to file a written brief. Afterward, the court said, the other parties involved in the suits — the state and the sit-ins — may "respond if they do desire" within 30 days.

This means no decision can be handed down before Jan. 20. And, judged by the pace the tribunal usually follows, it is unlikely to come before February or March — possibly later. If the justices decide to hear further oral argument on the new briefs that would mean still more delay.

Before the justices are two Maryland cases, two from South Carolina and one from Florida. But there are thousands of other cases which could be affected by the outcome, particularly if the decision is made on broad rather than narrow grounds.

Opposed to having Cox present views on the broad issue were Justices Hugo L. Black, Tom C. Clark, John M. Harlan and Byron R. White. Asking for the Justice Department views were Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justices William Douglas, William Brennan, Potter Stewart and Arthur Goldberg.

ABDEL SALAM AREF

Aref Takes Power In Iraq

Beirut, Lebanon (AP) — Pro-Nasser President Abdel Salam Aref of Iraq seized power in Baghdad Monday with the help of the army, touching off fighting that threatened a general flareup in the Middle East.

Driven from office was the cabinet of anti-Nasser Ba'ath Socialists, who are closely allied with the Ba'athist regime in neighboring Syria.

Syrian broadcasts denounced Aref as a tyrant and predicted his downfall. Cairo newspapers hailed the coup as heralding an end to Ba'athist supremacy in Iraq and Syria.

Prospect

This raised the prospect of a struggle involving Iraq, Syria and President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic. Only last spring these nations were talking of an Arab union. The Ba'athists scuttled the plan and brought Iraq and Syria toward military and economic union.

Baghdad radio denied the Aref and a group of army officers moved at dawn to wrest power from the ruling Ba'ath Party.

Radio Baghdad interrupted a program to announce the imposition of a general curfew. The radio relayed proclamations announcing the takeover of power by Aref and ordering immediate dissolution of the national guard, military arm of the Ba'ath Party.

Pockets

Baghdad and the rest of the country quieted by nightfall. Baghdad asserted, but it admitted that the forces backing Aref had encountered "some pockets of resistance."

Syria's Damascus radio, however, claimed heavy fighting still raged in Baghdad between the Iraqi army and the national guard, backed by some Ba'athist-inclined troops. Quoting a Ba'athist radio station broadcasting from inside Iraq, Damascus claimed that apart from Baghdad the rest of the country was under Ba'athist control.

Baghdad radio denied the Damascus reports, asserting that the national guard had surrendered.

No Mention

There was no mention of the fate of Premier Ahmed Hassan El-Bakr and other members of the cabinet. Only Sunday Bakr apparently had solidified his hold on the country after a week of Ba'athist interparty feuding that at times seemed to verge on civil war.

A statement by the Ba'athist National Revolutionary Council of Syria pledged all-out support to Iraq's Ba'ath regime.

"The Ba'athist masses and the Ba'ath's strong national guard corps will destroy the tyrant and those who plot with reactionary elements, Zionists and imperialists," Damascus radio declared.

Internal

At the same time, an official announcement from Cairo radio said the United Arab Republic considered events in Iraq an internal matter and any violation of the Iraqi border would be automatically considered a violation of the United Arab Republic.

Blast Levels Two-Story House

65-Year-Old Omahan Hurt In Explosion

Omaha (AP) — A gas explosion which sounded like a sonic boom to neighbors demolished a two-story frame house in mid-town Omaha Monday, injured one man and damaged dozens of neighboring buildings.

Debris was hurled from 100 to 200 feet in all directions and windows were broken in houses as far as three blocks from the site.

Albert B. Cady, 65, was hauled from the rubble by firemen who arrived moments later from a nearby station. His condition was reported as serious.

The Cady home was at 915 North 50th Avenue.

Mrs. Cady was visiting a friend a few blocks away at the time and escaped the blast.

Chief fire investigator Dan Mulcahey said a plug was missing from a gas line and gas was present in the basement of the home.

Mulcahey said a meter reader, James L. Pospisil, told him he was reading a meter in the Cady house a short time before the blast and a man told him he was going to kill himself.

Mulcahey said Pospisil reported that he continued on his way and did not notify authorities because he did not take the man seriously.

The explosion blew out the east wall of the building and the ceiling and roof collapsed. One side of the house smashed into a bedroom at the George Healey home next door. Mrs. Healey said she was at the telephone at the time. She told reporters the explosion was "terrific, like a bomb."

All but two windows in her house were shattered and ceilings were cracked.

A wall of the Frank W. Hickson Jr. home on the other side of the Cady home was crushed.

One large section of the Cady home was tossed clear across the street.

The blast was heard as far away as Council Bluffs, Iowa, nearly six miles from the scene.

Cady retired in 1961 as operator of the Midwest Manufacturing and Welding Company, now runs the company.

Rev. Russell Leaving Pastorate At Sidney

Sidney (AP) — The Rev. Aubrey Russell, pastor of the First Christian Church here since June, 1960, has submitted his resignation and will go to the Christian Church at Palmyra, Mo. He said his new duties would begin Jan. 5.

Neighbors Willing To Help Injured Boy

... EXERCISE LIMBS RENDERED USELESS IN ACCIDENT

Bowling Green, Va. (AP) — Neighbors packed Town Hall to see and help Paul Manns Jr. on his 21st birthday.

Paul was there. But he was unable to comprehend fully what it was all about.

His brain is damaged by auto crash injuries suffered two years ago just as he was to leave for Auburn and a football scholarship.

Volunteers — showed up at Town Hall Sunday to hear a doctor explain how the movement of Paul's limbs by other persons might help the strapping, popular youth regain some use of himself.

For a year, Paul's life hung in the balance as doctors and his parents worked and watched over him in a Richmond hospital.

He was brought home and placed in a house equipped to meet his needs. But he must have constant attention. He can move only his head. He shows little signs of recognition.

Father Heard — Recently, his father, a weekly newspaper owner, and a member of the Virginia legislature, heard of the technique by which others move the victim's limbs to simulate his own movements.

But the long treatment covering months and perhaps years—requires the help of many persons. So the meeting was called and several hundred neighbors packed the hall to hear Dr. T. E. Billingsley.

Dr. Billingsley explained the technique that helped his son. The theory is that movement of limbs by other persons trains parts of the undamaged brain, which take over the processes formerly handled by the damaged portion.

Omaha Negro Leader Cites 'Ghetto' Housing

The Rev. Kelsey Jones, a leader in Omaha civil rights demonstrations, told a Lincoln public meeting Monday night that 29% of Omaha's Negroes live in a "ghetto" of sub-standard housing.

He told the Malone Community Center meeting sponsored by the Action Coordinating Team that teachers in public schools in the "ghetto" on Omaha's north side do not have "total qualifications."

Demonstrations before the Omaha City Council, he said, were an attempt to get the council "to recognize the urgency of the open occupancy ordinance."

Held "Sing-In" — "The council would not hear the grievances of the group," the Rev. Mr. Jones said. "The committee then decided to hold the sing-in demonstrations at a council meeting."

A number of persons were arrested as a result of the demonstrations. "The Citizens Coordinating Committee for Civil Liberties will continue to dramatize within the frame of the law to show that it is unhappy with the lack of a fair housing ordinance," the Omaha minister said.

"The purpose of the 4CL is not to create problems, but to point out existing ones," he continued.

In describing the 4CL's goals, the Rev. Mr. Jones quoted from Shakespeare's Hamlet: "To be or not to be, that is the question." For the 4CL, to be a man or to be a sub-man, that is the question.

There are no guarantees that it will be. But to parents who have seen their son lay helpless and uncomprehending for two anxious years, any ray of hope is meaningful.

Wallace Says Justice Dept. Plays With Beatniks, Hoods

Dallas (UPI) — Gov. George Wallace of Alabama accused the Justice Department Monday of playing along with "the flood of beatniks, sex perverts, narcotics addicts and common criminals who have invaded Alabama as so-called civil rights workers."

Wallace, in Dallas to make a speech, announced at a news conference that he will pay, out of a special state fund, the traveling expenses of a Dallas County (Ala.) grand jury to Washington to question Department of Justice civil rights lawyers.

The jury will leave next Monday, if the Justice Department makes the lawyers available for questioning next week. The jury specifically wants to hear the Justice Department men tell about driving integration leader Martin Luther King Jr. to a civil rights rally in a government car.

Wallace telegraphed Circuit Judge James Hare, Dallas County Prosecutor Blanchard McLeon and Sheriff James Clark that the state will pay the jury's traveling expenses. The telegram said in part:

PACT OKAYED, SHEET METAL STRIKE OVER

Sheet metal workers will return to their jobs Tuesday morning, ending a 10-week-old strike.

Sheetmetal Workers Local 541 members Monday night ratified the contractual agreement with the Lincoln Sheetmetal Contractors Association.

A verbal settlement had been reached a week ago.

The new contract will reportedly provide a gradual 35 cents an hour increase over a period ending May 1, 1966. The settlement involves wages only.

Sheet metal workers now get $3.60 an hour.

... 3RD MAN SOUGHT; SURPRISED BY DEPUTY

Two men arrested in the VFW Club at 3900 Cornhusker early Monday morning have been charged with burglary in Lancaster County Court. A third man, who fled when the trio was surprised by Deputy Sheriff Louis Harroun, is being sought.

David Stroth, 18, of Denver, requested a preliminary hearing which was set for Tuesday, and Edwin Galasso, 31, also of Denver, waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to District Court. Judge Ralph Slocum set bond for Stroth at $7,000, and for Galasso at $10,000.

The third man was described as light-haired, about 5 feet, 10 inches tall and weighing about 165 pounds.

May Be Wounded — It is believed that the missing man may have been wounded by a warning shot fired by Harroun.

Club Manager Kenneth Leiland had reported evidence about midnight that someone had set up the club for a break-in after business hours.

Harroun said he waited in the northwest corner of the building and the trio entered about 1:45 a.m.

Harroun said he ordered the three to put up their hands. He said that as he was reaching for a telephone to call for help one of the men started edging toward the door.

Ordered to Stop — Harroun said he ordered the man to stop.

"He kept edging toward the door and I fired a warning shot in his direction. When the shot was fired, the man grabbed his side and fell to the floor," he said.

When Harroun again attempted to call for help, the man got up and ran out.

The sheriff's office reported four other burglaries Sunday night at taverns and restaurants along Cornhusker Hwy.

Between $80 and $90 was taken from the Tack Room Bar, about $325 was missing from Jo-Jo's, $40 from Bob Lear's, and $100 from Town and Country Restaurant.

Sen. Marvel's ETV Figures Hit By Miller

Omaha (AP) — Omaha School Supt. Paul A. Miller said Monday that Sen. Richard Marvel, chairman of the Legislature's Budget Committee, had given distorted figures in his investigation of educational television costs.

Dr. Miller contended that Sen. Marvel's source had befooled up the federal funds and omitted some costs to make the cost estimates look as if there would be no deficit.

The Omaha school head said Sen. Marvel listed the federal government as providing $450,000 for the Nebraska ETV network while Omaha sources say it will be but $215,000. Dr. Miller said that since $750,000 is the entire federal amount Nebraska can get for a six-channel network it is illogical to believe $450,000 would be supplied for the two channels thus far planned.

The ETV Commission plans to build its first stations at Mead and Lexington but Omaha wants one built in Omaha ahead of one of the others.

On the other hand, Dr. John C. Schwazwalder of Milwaukee, who made a study of Nebraska's needs, said the Omaha plan would waste money because few sets could pick up channel 16, which Omaha wants to use, for about five years.

He said the Mead plan would serve Omaha best and that Omaha should have a loud voice in what is served over channel 12, the Mead operating channel.

Sandra Elliott Both Sewing, Rodeo Expert

Mitchell — Twenty-year-old Sandra Elliott is a versatile and talented young lady.

She holds two enviable titles. During the summer she was crowned Miss Buffalo Bill Rodeo for 1963. And this last weekend she won the senior division in the Nebraska "Make It Yourself With Wool" competition.

A 1963 graduate of Scottsbluff Junior College, she is currently enrolled at Colorado State University. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sandford Elliott, who operate a ranch near Mitchell.

Miss Elliott entered the Nebraska High School Rodeo for three years and was chosen queen in 1961.

Both Miss Elliott and Mary Lou Farner, 19, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Farner of Valentine, will compete for the title of Miss Rodeo America at Las Vegas starting Thursday. Miss Farner is Miss Rodeo Nebraska, having won her title at the Burwell Rodeo.

Returning to her sewing laurels, Miss Elliott was one of 32 young women from eight districts in the state modeling garments they made themselves from American-loomed wool at the contest in Kearney.

Summary of Conditions

There is a broad trough of low pressure from about central North Dakota down through the Nebraska Panhandle with weak high pressure cells in the Utah-Colorado area. Another high is centered in the southern tip of Illinois. An arctic front extends from the low in southwestern Hudson Bay to the northwest tip of Minnesota, to just south of Minot, N.D., and is stationary westward across northern North Dakota into northeast Montana.

This arctic air will probably advance no farther than central South Dakota in the next 24 hours. This will allow Nebraska and Iowa to bask in mild temperatures through Tuesday with only partly cloudy skies.

Not So Peaceful Countryside

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

November used to be a quiet and peaceful time of the year. Thanksgiving was awaited and the only big controversy was over the display by merchants of Christmas wares before the autumn feast. But that was before Bob Devaney and his crew came to Nebraska. People in the Cornhusker state haven't given up Thanksgiving and the merchants still have an interest in Christmas but something new has been added.

The Devaney regime instilled a spirit and installed a system and the net result was a football team the likes of which had not been seen in these parts for more than 20 years. Last year the Cornhusker football squad played its final game of the season for a possible Big Eight tie and a chance at the Orange Bowl. This year, the Huskers play their final game at home with a clear chance at exclusive title rights and an Orange Bowl guarantee. Last year, the Huskers didn't quite make it as they fell to Oklahoma in a game in which most things seemed to work against them. This year, nobody knows what will happen.

But until the verdict is in, all things are at loose ends. If you want in on the conversations that make the rounds this year, you had better know a little something about football and what the University of Nebraska squad has been doing. Regardless of next Saturday's outcome, the Huskers have already established themselves as a team in which the state has great pride. But the expectation of downing the Sooners and going to Miami for the New Year's Day classic will be raising a lot of blood pressure all the rest of this week.

The Husker squad has been hard working and talented and the coaching staff has realized the potential that was there. Nebraska is not surprised if their team takes Oklahoma to the cleaners but they will be living a fit of anxiety until they know just what the final 1963 record is to be. Until then, they will be saving their shekels in hopes of a mid-winter trip south.

Unfortunately, in the midst of all this heady feeling, life must still go on. The world cannot stop and it most assuredly will not just for Nebraska to live the rest of time in a state of exhilaration. One of the more interesting solid subjects of discussion in the news the past few days has been the matter of the Interstate Highway. Speculation centered in a discussion with State Engineer John Hossack over the possibility of extending the system after its initial phase is completed in 1972. This is some nine years away and to a lot of people, nine years seems like a long time. But nine years will fly by before you know it and it will bring a lot of changes. Time expires but the human race does not. The human race just goes on in a constantly lengthened stride in quest of new horizons and new achievements.

The question of the Interstate does not have to be settled today, by any means, but it is a worthy subject of debate. The individual who maintains that there will be no need for expansion of the system simply has his head in the sand. The need will not be realized, probably, as a result of overloading on the system as it stands in 1972. For what it is, this system should be able to handle demands made upon it for a period of time well beyond 1972. The rub is going to come, as it has in the past, on other highways.

The Interstate is giving people a taste of what a first-class highway is and what it can mean in terms of safety, convenience and time saved. The only trouble is that there will be many places that are not along an Interstate route and there will be a growing demand for more of the four-lane structures to serve these areas.

The economics of the situation will create another demand. Not only will public convenience seek additional Interstate, but regional pocketbooks will feel the pinch or bulge of the super highway, whichever their lot happens to be. If they are on the Interstate, it will be a bulge they will experience and if they are removed from the highway, it will be a pinch.

Those communities that are not on or near the Interstate as it is completed in 1972 will push for an expansion of the system to give them equality of opportunity. They will not be content with the kind of hopeless competition they face in the field of transportation, tourism, etc.

The Interstate has not caught the imagination of communities as did the first railroad but the impact will be about the same. The Interstate route is going to mark the route of progress and prosperity through the nation and no community wants to be left on the short end of that.

This is why the plan will be pushed beyond 1972 and why it will be successfully expanded. The anti-government cries will be heard and perhaps the federal government will not finance the program after 1972 to the extent it currently does but the cries will be drowned in a chorus of demands and the financing will be found, by hook or by crook.

DREW PEARSON

Believe Reds Are Playing For Effect

WASHINGTON—During the backstage White House discussions over the Professor Barghoorn incident, all sorts of theories have been given for the hardening policies of Moscow.

The theories have ranged from Khrushchev's troubles with the Red Army, to a desire to show firmness against Red Chinese charges of appeasement, to the belief that some of the incidents were caused by subordinates without the knowledge of top men in the Kremlin.

It is, of course, true that Khrushchev has had his troubles with the Red army, and last winter fired the chief of staff, Marshal Matvei Zakharov, and the chief of military intelligence, Gen. I. A. Serov. This was the culmination of a running argument which apparently began when Khrushchev pulled Russian missiles out of Cuba in what military leaders considered an abject surrender to the United States.

Following Cuba, Marshal Malinovsky, the minister of defense, was reported irked and downgraded. Apparently he was not downgraded very much, because he continued on the job. But he certainly appeared to be irked, because he made a public statement differing with published accounts that his chief, Nikita Khrushchev, was really responsible for the great Russian victory at Stalingrad.

This was equivalent to Secretary of Defense McNamara saying publicly that John F. Kennedy was not a hero in the PT boat rescue in the South Pacific—a statement which, if made, would undoubtedly result in Mr. McNamara's resignation. Malinovsky, however, did not resign.

There have been other differences between Khrushchev and the Red army, including its pressure on him to resume nuclear testing in the late summer of 1961 and its vigorous opposition to a reduction in the officer strength in 1960.

Despite this friction, however, it's not believed that the Red army is the overriding reason for the worsening of US-USSR relations so soon after the test ban thaw.

Nor is the desire to combat Chinese accusations of appeasement considered an over-riding reason. It is true that an extremely important European communist meeting is now taking place in Moscow and a decision is imminent as to whether the Chinese shall be expelled from the communist brotherhood or relations improved.

The basic difference between Moscow and Peking is over co-existence with the capitalist world, and it is possible that Khrushchev wants to toughen his tactics in order to meet the Chinese halfway without actually yielding to their basic policy that war is inevitable.

All of the above may influence Soviet strategy.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

Many a farm woman is spending her nights alone while her husband is off to a cattle sale in some distant market place. Week in and week out, some farmers travel from one sale barn to another until they have enough cattle to fill their feed lots or clean up the corn and milo fields.

The Farmer went last week for the first time, intending to be home in the early evening. The first market did not have the type of cattle he was looking for so he and several other farmers went on to another sale. He did not return until after midnight.

I thought of the things I was going to do in the quiet evening hours. First I thought of a book I had that I wanted to read, but after a few pages I decided that I should answer a letter. This I did in a short time. I suddenly thought of a set of dish towels that have been in the process of being embroidered for some time. I took those out, did a few stitches and put them aside. For an instant, I decided to bake a cake but that sounded like too much work for such an hour in the evening. This was to be a quiet evening spent alone, doing something I really wanted to do.

The walls of the house seemed close around me and gave an added measure of comfort. The stamps that had been accumulating in the buffet drawer should be pasted in the book, but that sounded too tedious. I could make out my Christmas list. With no snow on the ground and temperatures in the seventies, that seemed a bit premature. Somehow I just couldn't get the Christmas spirit so I discarded that idea.

By the time I had tried to find something worthwhile and satisfying, the evening had slipped away and I went to bed. It was a bit early for retiring but, come to think of it, I had been wishing for a peaceful evening of no TV and early to bed for a long time. So perhaps I satisfied an inner yearning, after all, but when I am not used to having time on my hands, I suddenly found I did not know what to do with it once I did have it.

Eighteen head of little steers and heifers now roam about the pasture and it seems good to have cattle back on the farm again. The first three or four days, they bawled as only lonesome five hundred pound calves can bawl. The nights, too, were filled with the mixed sounds of cattle lowing but at last they became reconciled to their strange surroundings and decided to eat grass and grow fat.

I never cease to learn new things despite the fact that I have been learning things for many a year. Having lived on a farm all my life, I was certain I knew just about everything there was to learn about the ways of animals and farming practices. There was one thing I did not know until The Farmer brought home the calves from Burwell. Among the Angus were two red calves. They were of the same build as the Angus and looked much like them except for color. It was then that The Farmer told me they were red Angus.

"Red Angus!" I gasped in surprise. For a moment I thought he just told me that to see how gullible I was. "Of course those are red Angus. Didn't you know there are red Angus?"

I had to admit all these years I thought Angus cattle meant they were of a distinct breed that were always black in color.

I hope there are other farm women who didn't know this. I would feel much better if I were not the only one who had been living farm life all these years in such ignorance.

There is an old adage that says, "Ignorance is bliss." Maybe that is why I have been so completely happy here at the farm. I would not be at all surprised to learn there are polka-dotted sheep and striped goats.

In Defiance

Lincoln, Neb.

Now that God has been ejected from the schools, many people are wondering when the burning of Bibles will start. It has been recently noted that certain evidence in some courts has been altered or falsified, also. In several recent cases in which victims of assaults had to have from 10 to 35 stitches taken to close wounds and had some broken bones, the assailants were charged with intent to do bodily harm. Damage that requires extended medical treatment is more than "intent." It is actual damage.

Biblical laws state that when one individual injured another, the assailant is bound to pay the injured for the actual damage done. If it were only intent, the victim would be free from damage.

It is shocking to know that false evidence is being presented in courts. One would believe that people would be afraid to defy God's laws, but apparently they are not. In the event it can be proven that God does not exist, then this so-called civilized world will be lost forever.

OBSERVER

Consolidation

Lincoln, Neb.

I see that the school boards of some of Lancaster County's unaccredited high schools are trying to get the Lincoln schools and University High to refuse tuition students from their districts. I fail to see what this has to do with consolidation.

I think that is just a smoke-screen. Some of these districts have no intention of giving up their small high schools. Consolidation won't take place until the Legislature makes it mandatory.

Why should those students who realize they must have the background of an accredited high school education in order to realize their future ambitions be deprived of it as long as they are willing to pay the approximately $540 yearly tuition out of their own pockets?

This action to try to force these students to attend these poor high schools reminds me of the Berlin situation. Why don't they make concentration camps out of each district, build walls and mount machine guns to keep these captive students in? These "wayward" students will have no effect on consolidation if these districts are really sincere. I worked for consolidation of southeast Lancaster County before and I firmly believe in it. But it was turned down.

Consolidation is at least 10 years away. People have to wake up first, and too many are asleep.

For several years I have tried to get a better education for the Walton high schoolers. Do they want it? I have gone through the fire of lies and slander about myself and my family to the recent vandalism, robbery and brutal killing of our family watch-dog at our country home. But I will still beat the drums and wave the flag of truth.

The Walton district is in the best position of any of the county high schools. Close to Lincoln, Waverly and Eagle, they could close the disapproved high school at Walton and send their students to any of these good schools for about half what it costs at this disapproved high school.

So I hope Lincoln will not turn its back on these students. Until consolidation is an accomplished fact, until it has been voted in by the people in the districts, Lincoln is their only hope.

Faith Shaken

Lincoln, Neb.

During the many years I have lived in Nebraska, it has been my privilege to see many legislatures, both bicameral and unicameral, come and go, but none has disturbed my belief in truly representative government so much as has the Legislature of the current biennium. Too many of the present Legislature are, it seems to me, seeking to become members of the Congress or governor.

Now after an unusually long regular session, the governor has had to call the Legislature back into special session to correct a number of budgetary mistakes and to reconsider certain time interest rate laws found to be unconstitutional by the state's supreme court. To this amateur on legislative matters, it would seem possible that the Legislature's "fiscal agent" might well have called attention to said budgetary mistakes. And I wonder, also, why not have an authority on the state's constitutional provisions examine any and all new proposed legislation for any element or possible elements of unconstitutionality? I am, however, very much opposed to an possible prejudgment on any legislation by the state's supreme court, any of its members or its agents.

Suffice it is to say that there are certain aspects of the present Legislature's actions that have shaken my hitherto strong support of the state's non-partisan and assumedly non-political present unicameral legislative system.

Nebraska's Great Task

Doubtless the recommendation of the Committee on Economic Development a year ago to solve the farm problem by running farm families out of agriculture to Heaven knows where is a most tragic oversimplification of one of this nation's most complicated and dangerous problems.

Yet we are sorry to report that the suggestion is getting acceptance with increasing ease in the non-agricultural areas. The farmer's rebuttal is not attracting listeners.

The National Planning Association committee got no back talk recently when it observed that the major problem of American agriculture consists of too many people trying to share an inadequate income.

This only varies from the CED's view in that it emphasizes a gradual rather than an abrupt transition.

The warning to the agricultural states is clearly written. The decisive power is with the majority, not with the farmers.

It urgently admonishes states where the removal is in progress to take positive and successful steps to provide against the loss of many of its citizens and the tragedy that threatens so many of them. Nebraska must cease treating its towns and cities as step-children and address itself to plans and action aiding the communities in providing homes and occupations not presently existing for those who must leave the nearby farms. The farm problem cannot be dissociated from the community and state. Nebraska must remake itself and keep its people, if not in farming, then in other pleasing and gainful occupations.

Not Even A Question

The painful anonymity of the individual in the Soviet society was never better illustrated than it was in the case of Yale Prof. Frederick C. Barghoorn. Intending to write a book on the Russian political system, Professor Barghoorn stated in advance to Soviet officials what it was he intended to do in their country.

Yet, when he arrived there, he asked the wrong kind of questions, from their point of view. As a result of his questions, he was picked up on spy charges and released only in the face of a strong U.S. protest.

It is possible that the professor was only the subject of some complicated international game. Perhaps it was Russia's answer to recent U.S. action dispelling two diplomats and arresting a third Red for espionage against this nation.

If this were the case, however, it would be strange for the Reds to grant the release. It seems more apparent that Professor Barghoorn was arrested on real Soviet suspicion. And how unfounded can suspicion be?

It was not on the basis of anything that the professor had done that he became suspect; it was only that he made astute inquiry. In a communist state, however, even the wrong inquiry can get you into trouble. In contrast, just about anything can be and is asked of our public officials and private citizens.

The line in this nation against the individual is drawn after the fact, not before it. Mere suspicion constitutes no indictment except behind the Iron Curtain.

A Matter Of Context

If there were a way to turn back the calendar to this morning in 1863, the county seat town of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, would be the scene of historic activity. It would be a few hours before the formalities dedicating a war cemetery, about a mile south of town. It was a cemetery sponsored by the state of Pennsylvania, supported by the northern states whose soldiers took part in a mighty battle there during the opening days of the previous July.

The three day battle had taken a toll of 50,000 killed and wounded. This dedication day attracted 15,000, principally Pennsylvanians, many of whom were as interested in looking at the battlefield as participating in a dedication of a cemetery.

One man wasn't. He was President Abraham Lincoln. He had but a minor part in the ceremonies. In the three minutes allotted to him he was resolved to make a very few words present a picture of reality, and a guideline to the ultimate meaning of such a great sacrifice of life.

Hardly anyone today reads the words of the day's major oration, but every child is familiar with the phrases of Lincoln's Gettysburg address. But it is unfortunate that the glib recitation of those few wonderful paragraphs today make them more poetic than real. The Gettysburg address, to be appreciated, must be examined in the context of the times in which it was uttered—in that period of national confusion, bloody fighting and overtaxed emotions.

The address was great because its giver was about the only one who could see through the clouds to the fine vista of the American future. It was also great because the vista was real. The others dedicated a war cemetery, but Lincoln dedicated the great tomorrow.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Economy Is Wed To Defense Spending

WASHINGTON — With a presidential year just ahead it is a safe bet that the rallying cry, "elect me because I can do more for the great state of . . ." is certain to resound across the land. The eager office-seeker will give the impression that defense contracts, research contracts, projects large and small, are on the political auction block and he and he alone can snare them.

Defense spending takes today 10 per cent of the nation's gross national product. This means that whole communities and large payrolls depend on a continuous flow of dollars from Washington. Any substantial reduction in this spending, whether by the economics that Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara is trying so earnestly to bring about in the next budget or by a modest beginning at disarmament, means a rude adjustment.

A program put forward recently to help ease the adjustment from a cold war economy to a future peace-time economy went almost unnoticed. Sen. George McGovern (D., S.D.), joined by 10 others including majority whip Hubert Humphrey, proposed a national economic conversion commission. The commission would be responsible for drafting a blueprint for converting to peacetime work and for drawing up schedules of possible private and public investment that would help to bridge the transition period. All plants in which 25 per cent of operation was in defense would be required to set up an operating conversion committee.

In presenting his proposal to the Senate, McGovern quoted in support of it from an eminently respectable source, a survey of the

Morgan Guaranty Bank:

"With about one-tenth of gross national product devoted to military purposes year after year, there has developed a reluctance, both public and private, toward cutting back so sizable a sector of economic activity. Thus, the very fact that makes it important to prepare for the possibility of a reduction in defense outlays—that is, the economy's heavy involvement in defense—could also make it more difficult to achieve reduction."

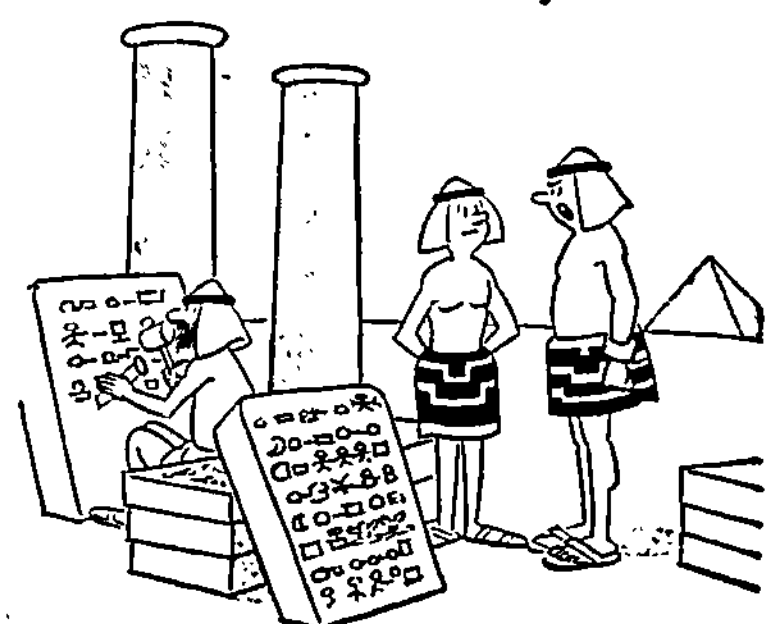

McGovern uttered a warning similar to that which has long been coming from business. The fact that roughly three-fourths of the nation's scientific and engineering talent is in military research and development or space has caused a drastic decline in the modernization of civilian industries. The United States, which once led the world in machine-tool production, today has slipped to fourth or fifth place, according to McGovern.

The concentration of research in the government sector means that this country has lagged behind in new and improved products. In West Germany only five to 10 per cent of a research is in defense and the balance in private industry.

What this means in world competition in the sale of goods and services hardly needs to be pointed out. The relation to America's unfavorable balance of payments is a direct one. As West Germany, Japan and Italy have built up new plants, the United States is left today with the unenviable distinction of operating the most outdated metal-working machinery of any major industrial power.

Not So Peaceful Countryside

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

November used to be a quiet and peaceful time of the year. Thanksgiving was awaited and the only big controversy was over the display by merchants of Christmas wares before the autumn feast. But that was before Bob Devaney and his crew came to Nebraska. People in the Cornhusker state haven't given up Thanksgiving and the merchants still have an interest in Christmas but something new has been added.

The Devaney regime instilled a spirit and installed a system and the net result was a football team the likes of which had not been seen in these parts for more than 20 years. Last year the Cornhusker football squad played its final game of the season for a possible Big Eight tie and a chance at the Orange Bowl. This year, the Huskers play their final game at home with a clear chance at exclusive title rights and an Orange Bowl guarantee. Last year, the Huskers didn't quite make it as they fell to Oklahoma in a game in which most things seemed to work against them. This year, nobody knows what will happen.

But until the verdict is in, all things are at loose ends. If you want in on the conversations that make the rounds this week, you had better know a little something about football and what the University of Nebraska squad has been doing. Regardless of next Saturday's outcome, the Huskers have already established themselves as a team in which the state has great pride. But the expectation of downing the Sooners and going to Miami for the New Year's Day classic will be raising a lot of blood pressure all the rest of this week.

The Husker squad has been hard working and talented and the coaching staff has realized the potential that was there. Nebraska will not be surprised if their team takes Oklahoma to the cleaners but they will be living a fit of anxiety until they know just what the final 1963 record is to be. Until then, they will be saving their shekels in hopes of a mid-winter trip south.

Unfortunately, in the midst of all this heady feeling, life must still go on. The world cannot stop and it most assuredly will not just for Nebraska to live the rest of time in a state of exhilaration. One of the more interesting solid subjects of discussion in the news the past few days has been the matter of the Interstate Highway. Speculation centered in a discussion with State Engineer John Hossack over the possibility of extending the system after its initial phase is completed in 1972. This is some nine years away and to a lot of people, nine years seems like a long time. But nine years will fly by before you know it and it will bring a lot of changes. Time expires but the human race does not. The human race just goes on in a constantly lengthened stride in quest of new horizons and new achievements.

The question of the Interstate does not have to be settled today, by any means, but it is a worthy subject of debate. The individual who maintains that there will be no need for expansion of the system simply has his head in the sand. The need will not be realized, probably, as a result of overloading on the system as it stands in 1972. For what it is, this system should be able to handle demands made upon it for a period of time well beyond 1972. The rub is going to come, as it has in the past, on other highways.

The Interstate is giving people a taste of what a first-class highway is and what it can mean in terms of safety, convenience and time saved. The only trouble is that there will be many places that are not along an Interstate route and there will be a growing demand for more of the four-lane structures to serve these areas.

The economics of the situation will create another demand. Not only will public convenience seek additional Interstate, but regional pocketbooks will feel the pinch or bulge of the super highway, whichever their lot happens to be. If they are on the Interstate, it will be a bulge they will experience and if they are removed from the highway, it will be a pinch.

Those communities that are not on or near the Interstate as it is completed in 1972 will push for an expansion of the system to give them equality of opportunity. They will not be content with the kind of hopeless competition they face in the field of transportation, tourism, etc. The Interstate has not caught the imagination of communities as did the first railroad but the impact will be about the same. The Interstate route is going to mark the route of progress and prosperity through the nation and no community wants to be left on the short end of that.

This is why the plan will be pushed beyond 1972 and why it will be successfully expanded. The anti-government cries will be heard and perhaps the federal government will not finance the program after 1972 to the extent it currently does but the cries will be drowned in a chorus of demands and the financing will be found, by hook or by crook.

DREW PEARSON

Believe Reds Are Playing For Effect

WASHINGTON—During the backstage White House discussions over the Professor Barghoorn incident, all sorts of theories have been given for the hardening policies of Moscow.

The theories have ranged from Khrushchev's troubles with the Red Army, to a desire to show firmness against Red Chinese charges of appeasement, to the belief that some of the incidents were caused by subordinates without the knowledge of top men in the Kremlin.

It is, of course, true that Khrushchev has had his troubles with the Red army, and last winter fired the chief of staff, Marshal Matvei Zakharov, and the chief of military intelligence, Gen. I. A. Serov. This was the culmination of a running argument which apparently began when Khrushchev pulled Russian missiles out of Cuba in what military leaders considered an abject surrender to the United States.

Following Cuba, Marshal Malinovsky, the minister of defense, was reported irked and downgraded. Apparently he was not downgraded very much, because he continued on the job. But he certainly appeared to be irked, because he made a public statement differing with published accounts that his chief, Nikita Khrushchev, was really responsible for the great Russian victory at Stalingrad.

This was equivalent to Secretary of Defense McNamara

saying publicly that John F. Kennedy was not a hero in the PT boat rescue in the South Pacific—a statement which, if made, would undoubtedly result in Mr. McNamara's resignation. Malinovsky, however, did not resign.

There have been other differences between Khrushchev and the Red army, including its pressure on him to resume nuclear testing in the late summer of 1961 and its vigorous opposition to a reduction in the officer strength in 1960.

Despite this friction, however, it's not believed that the Red army is the over-riding reason for the worsening of US-USSR relations so soon after the test ban thaw.

Nor is the desire to combat Chinese accusations of appeasement considered an over-riding reason. It is true that an extremely important European communist meeting is now taking place in Moscow and a decision is imminent as to whether the Chinese shall be expelled from the communist brotherhood or relations improved.

The basic difference between Moscow and Peking is over co-existence with the capitalist world, and it is possible that Khrushchev wants to toughen his tactics in order to meet the Chinese halfway without actually yielding to their basic policy that war is inevitable.

All of the above may influence Soviet strategy. Copyright, 1963, By Bell-McClure Synd.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

Many a farm woman is spending her nights alone while her husband is off to a cattle sale in some distant market place. Week in and week out, some farmers travel from one sale barn to another until they have enough cattle to fill their feed lots or clean up the corn and milo fields.

The Farmer went last week for the first time, intending to be home in the early evening. The first market did not have the type of cattle he was looking for so he and several other farmers went on to another sale. He did not return until after midnight.

I thought of the things I was going to do in the quiet evening hours. First I thought of a book I had that I wanted to read, but after a few pages I decided that I should answer a letter. This I did in a short time. I suddenly thought of a set of dish towels that have been in the process of being embroidered for some time. I took those out, did a few stitches and put them aside. For an instant, I decided to bake a cake but that sounded like too much work for such an hour in the evening. This was to be a quiet evening spent alone, doing something I really wanted to do.

The walls of the house seemed close around me and gave an added measure of comfort. The stamps that had been accumulating in the buffet drawer should be pasted in the book, but that sounded too tedious. I could make out my Christmas list. With no snow on the ground and temperatures in the seventies, that seemed a bit premature. Somehow I just couldn't get the Christmas spirit so I discarded that idea.

By the time I had tried to find something worthwhile and satisfying, the evening had slipped away and I went to bed. It was a bit early for retiring but, come to think of it, I had been wishing for a peaceful evening of no TV and early to bed for a long time. So perhaps I satisfied an inner yearning, after all, but when I am not used to having time on my hands, I suddenly found I did not know what to do with it once I did have it.

Eighteen head of little steers and heifers now roam about the pasture and it seems good to have cattle back on the farm again. The first three or four days, they bawled as only lonesome five hundred pound calves can bawl. The nights, too, were filled with the mixed sounds of cattle lowing but at last they became reconciled to their strange surroundings and decided to eat grass and grow fat.

I never cease to learn new things despite the fact that I have been learning things for many a year. Having lived on a farm all my life, I was certain I knew just about everything there was to learn about the ways of animals and farming practices.

There was one thing I did not know until The Farmer brought home the calves from Burwell. Among the Angus were two red calves. They were of the same build as the Angus and looked much like them except for color. It was then that The Farmer told me they were red Angus.

"Red Angus!" I gasped in surprise. For a moment I thought he just told me that to see how gullible I was.

"Of course those are red Angus. Didn't you know there are red Angus?" I had to admit all these years I thought Angus cattle meant they were of a distinct breed that were always black in color.

I hope there are other farm women who didn't know this. I would feel much better if I were not the only one who had been living farm life all these years in such ignorance.

There is an old adage that says, "Ignorance is bliss." Maybe that is why I have been so completely happy here at the farm. I would not be at all surprised to learn there are polka-dotted sheep and striped goats.

In Defiance

Lincoln, Neb.

Now that God has been ejected from the schools, many people are wondering when the burning of Bibles will start. It has been recently noted that certain evidence in some courts has been altered or falsified, also. In several recent cases in which victims of assaults had to have from 10 to 35 stitches taken to close wounds and had some broken bones, the assailants were charged with intent to do bodily harm. Damage that requires extended medical treatment is more than "intent." It is actual damage.

Biblical laws state that when one individual injured another, the assailant is bound to pay the injured for the actual damage done. If it were only intent, the victim would be free from damage.

It is shocking to know that false evidence is being presented in courts. One would believe that people would be afraid to defy God's laws, but apparently they are not. In the event it can be proven that God does not exist, then this so-called civilized world will be lost forever.

OBSERVER

Lincoln, Neb.

I see that the school boards of some of Lancaster County's unaccredited high schools are trying to get the Lincoln schools and University High to refuse tuition students from their districts. I fail to see what this has to do with consolidation.

I think that is just a smoke-screen. Some of these districts have no intention of giving up their small high schools. Consolidation won't take place until the Legislature makes it mandatory.

Why should those students who realize they must have the background of an accredited high school education in order to realize their future ambitions be deprived of it as long as they are willing to pay the approximately $540 yearly tuition out of their own pockets?

This action to try to force these poor high schools reminds me of the Berlin situation. Why don't they make concentration camps out of each district, build walls and mount machine guns to keep these captive students in? These "wayward" students will have no effect on consolidation if these districts are really sincere. I worked for consolidation of southeast Lancaster County before and I firmly believe in it. But it was turned down.

Consolidation is at least 10 years away. People have to wake up first, and too many are asleep.

For several years I have tried to get a better education for the Walton high schoolers. Do they want it? I have gone through the fire of lies and slander about myself and my family to the recent vandalism, robbery and brutal killing of our family watch-dog at our country home. But I will still beat the drums and wave the flag of truth.

The Walton district is in the best position of any of the county high schools. Close to Lincoln, Waverly and Eagle, they could close the disapproved high school at Walton and send their students to any of these good schools for about half what it costs at this disapproved high school.

So I hope Lincoln will not turn its back on these students. Until consolidation is an accomplished fact, until it has been voted in by the people in the districts, Lincoln is their only hope.

Lincoln, Neb.

During the many years I have lived in Nebraska, it has been my privilege to see many legislatures, both bicameral and unicameral, come and go, but none has disturbed my belief in truly representative government so much as has the Legislature of the current biennium. Too many of the present Legislature are, it seems to me, seeking to become members of the Congress or governor.

Now after an unusually long regular session, the governor has had to call the Legislature back into special session to correct a number of budgetary mistakes and to reconsider certain time interest rate laws found to be unconstitutional by the state's supreme court. To this amateur on legislative matters, it would seem possible that the Legislature's "fiscal agent" might well have called attention to said budgetary mistakes. And I wonder, also, why not have an authority on the state's constitutional provisions examine any and all new proposed legislation for any element or possible elements of unconstitutionality? I am, however, very much opposed to an possible prejudgment on any legislation by the state's supreme court, any of its members or its agents.

Suffice it is to say that there are certain aspects of the present Legislature's actions that have shaken my hitherto strong support of the state's non-partisan and assumedly non-political present unicameral legislative system.

Northwest Abounds In Residences For Senior Citizens

By ROBERT PETERSON

They say that next to lumber and mining, the biggest industry in the Northwest is retirement housing. Nobody seems to know why the natives are so senior minded, but it's a heartening fact that the Portland, Ore. area abounds in shiny, new apartments and dwellings for the aged.

Most impressive of these is 12-story Terwilliger Plaza, just two years old and a 10 minute stroll from the midtown shopping area. This handsome pink brick and glass structure in bold, modern design was the first FHA-financed non-profit apartment residence for elders in the nation. It's home-sweet-home to more than 400 men and women past 60.

"All it takes to build a place like this is an idea and persistence," said general manager Arnold E. Ramer, 57, when I stopped by his office.

"Six years ago a retired teacher conceived the idea of building a non-profit apartment house for retired teachers and others of similar educational and cultural backgrounds.

"Thanks to her insistence, the Oregon Education Association set up a committee to study the proposal. The association then loaned the committee working capital of $5,000, to launch the project."

He went on to say that the committee then applied for FHA assistance and, after fulfilling various requirements, received an FHA-guaranteed 40-year loan of $3,865,500.

"It was quite an oak which grew from that acorn," he commented as we strolled through the spacious lobby with its floor-to-ceiling windows offering a spectacular view of the city and of Mt. Hood in the distance.

How much does it cost to buy a nest in this handsome oak? "We charge an entrance fee ranging from $2,500 to $6,250, based on the size and location of the apartment, and then a monthly fee ranging from $85 to $170, which includes utilities and full membership in the residence including participation in social and recreational programs, use of a 9-bed infirmary for short illnesses, use of free automatic laundry facilities, and bi-weekly cleaning services.

"All entrance fees are immediately applied against our loan, and based on the turnover we can expect from normal mortality, we know that construction costs, plus interest, will be paid off in 40 years. The monthly charge covers current operating expenses.

"Food costs are not included because we find many older people prefer to shop and fix their own meals in their kitchenettes. But we have a beautiful dining room," he said, showing me a colorful modern room decorated in warm red and tans, "serving three meals daily at modest prices."

Why do people move to a residence such as this in preference to maintaining their own homes? "Various reasons," replied Mr. Ramer. "Most of our guests are more or less alone in the world. They feel more content and secure in a residence such as this offering plenty of companionship with folks of similar background. They also find they get more for their retirement dollars in a non-profit residence."

With more than a thousand Americans reaching 65 daily, there will be increasing demands for group residences of this kind. Established organizations in communities everywhere should awaken to the fact that funds for retirement housing are readily available if the need can be shown.

Court Asked To Reduce Life Sentence

Harry Dean Tatreau of Omaha Monday requested the Nebraska Supreme Court reduce his life sentence in the State Penal Complex on a kidnapping charge.

Tatreau was judged guilty by a Douglas County District Court jury of attempting to extort money from Harry S. Lewis of Omaha on July 21, 1962, by holding Lewis' wife and three boys hostage. Tatreau pleaded innocent to the charge.

In a brief filed with the court Monday, Tatreau asked the charge be changed from kidnapping to extortion, which carries a sentence of from one to three years imprisonment.

The case involved a robbery-by-telephone attempt by Tatreau and two other Omaha men. The robbery attempt was foiled when a pick-up man in a black coat failed to appear on time at a liquor store where Lewis was working. The police were tipped and the three were later taken into custody.

The brief cited a famous 1900 case in which two infamous criminals, Pat Crowe and Jim Callahan, kidnapped Edward Cudahy, Jr. and removed him to a place away from his home. He was confined until a ransom of $25,000 had been paid.

"This incident," the brief said, "caused a great turmoil and confusion on the part of the authorities for the reason that Cudahy having been imprisoned in the city of Omaha at a place away from his natural abode, no action could be taken against the criminals under the then existing law of kidnapping."

The brief added: "The state having failed to prove that the three Lewis boys were removed from their natural abode to another place for the purpose of extorting money, has failed to prove the crime of kidnapping as charged against this defendant."

Northwest Abounds In Residences For Senior Citizens

By ROBERT PETERSON

They say that next to lumber and mining, the biggest industry in the Northwest is retirement housing. Nobody seems to know why the natives are so senior minded, but it's a heartening fact that the Portland, Ore. area abounds in shiny, new apartments and dwellings for the aged.

Most impressive of these is 12-story Terwilliger Plaza, just two years old and a 10 minute stroll from the downtown shopping area. This handsome pink brick and glass structure in bold, modern design was the first FHA-financed nonprofit apartment residence for elders in the nation. It's home-sweet-home to more than 400 men and women past 60.

"All it takes to build a place like this is an idea and persistence," said general manager Arnold E. Ramer, 57, when I stopped by his office.

"Six years ago a retired teacher conceived the idea of building a nonprofit apartment house for retired teachers and others of similar educational and cultural backgrounds.

"Thanks to her insistence, the Oregon Education Association set up a committee to study the proposal. The association then loaned the committee working capital of $5,000, to launch the project."

He went on to say that the committee then applied for FHA assistance and, after fulfilling various requirements, received an FHA-guaranteed 40-year loan of $3,865,500.

"It was quite an oak which grew from that acorn," he commented as we strolled through the spacious lobby with its floor-to-ceiling windows offering a spectacular view of the city and of Mt. Hood in the distance.

How much does it cost to buy a nest in this handsome oak? "We charge an entrance fee ranging from $2,500 to $6,250, based on the size and location of the apartment, and then a monthly fee ranging from $85 to $170, which includes utilities and full membership in the residence including participation in social and recreational programs, use of a 9-bed infirmary for short illnesses, use of free automatic laundry facilities, and bi-weekly cleaning services.

Discussion Of Air Service In Nebraska Slated

State Aeronautics Department officials and representatives of 16 Major Nebraska communities will discuss the future of commercial aviation in Nebraska at a meeting in Omaha Monday night.

The meeting will follow a 7 p.m. banquet at the Eppley Airport Terminal Building. Gov. Frank Morrison and Lewis Dymond, president of Frontier Airlines, will speak at the dinner but neither will attend the discussions afterwards.

State Aeronautics Director James Sandstedt Monday said the banquet is a "recognition of the past efforts of communities who have worked so hard to retain air service."

The meeting, he said, will delve into future air transportation needs. Sandstedt said he expects the possibility of a north and south route across Nebraska will be brought up.

The cities invited are Omaha, Lincoln, Grand Island, North Platte, Scottsbluff, Alliance, Chadron, Sidney, McCook, Hastings, Kearney, Norfolk, Valentine, Ainsworth, Beatrice and Columbus.

All but the last four now have service. Valentine, Ainsworth and Beatrice had flights but lost them under the use it or lose it criteria of the Civil Aeronautics Board which requires a minimum average of five boardings a day. Columbus never has had service, but its application to get commercial flights is pending before the CAB now.

Except for Omaha, Lincoln, Grand Island, North

Platte and Scottsbluff, the rest were in danger of losing service also until last week when the CAB permanently certified them.

"It (now) behooves us to work out a future plan for the state," Sandstedt said. "We want to find out what we have and what will be needed for the future."

Sandstedt said that north and south service is poor throughout the country except for the east and west coasts.

U.S. Asks Red Trade Slowup

... BRITISH NIX APPEAL

Paris (UPI) — The United States asked its Atlantic allies Monday to slow down trade with the Soviet Union and Communist bloc nations and to stop granting long-term credit to them.

Refusal to set up controls, a U.S. statement said, would mean giving assistance to the Russians in building up their war machine and also would help ease the Soviet farm crisis.

Britain flatly rejected the appeal.

The U.S. position was presented by Undersecretary of State George W. Ball to a special 4½-hour session of the permanent council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He called for an end to credit longer than five years.

Britisher Blunt

Edward Heath, president of Britain's Board of Trade, told the council in blunt terms that his government is unwilling to make any such commitment. He said Britain is determined to press forward with trade among Communist nations in non-strategic goods.

Heath's statement was supported by Paul Martin, Canadian minister of external affairs. He said trade with the Communist bloc in non-strategic goods can help ease international tensions. Martin said the Red nations should not be "isolated."

Almost all other members of the council, however, either supported the United States or remained neutral.

The Six Argue

Reliable sources reported that all six European members of the Common Market — France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg — argued that they have, in practice, never granted credits longer than five years and that there is no reason why this policy should not become general.

Rolf Lahr, state secretary of the West German foreign office, was said to have urged that any new trade concessions to the Soviets should only be granted in exchange for Kremlin pledges to abandon the policy of a divided Germany and threats to isolate West Berlin.

The Scandinavians and other smaller NATO countries were said to have remained noncommittal.

Further Study

With the council deadlocked, it was agreed to turn the issue over to the NATO secretariat for further study. It probably will be raised again in the full NATO Council of Ministers in December.

Before the council session, Ball held a 45-minute conference with French Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing. Later, he met for 45 minutes with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

Tuesday, Ball will head the U.S. delegation at a two-day session of the Council of Ministers of the 22-member Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD).

Glenn freely acknowledged belief in the teachings of Leon Trotsky in his testimony. They had gone on to Europe and North Africa after leaving Cuba.

Rocky Takes His Campaign Up To Capitol Hill

Washington (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller brought his presidential candidate image to Capitol Hill Monday for smiling exposure to congressional Republicans of all shades of opinion.

But the indications were that, outside of his state's two GOP senators, the New York governor got few if any promises of support in what now shapes up as a strenuous contest with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., for the 1964 nomination.

Rockefeller told reporters that he was making "no endeavor to get any commitments."

But this did not bar informal conversation about future prospects and it was reported that the governor got no immediate encouragement in one situation where he is seeking help.

Kuchel Wants Time
Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., made it clear he wants more time to consult with home-state associates before deciding whether to head a Rockefeller delegate state in the California presidential primary next June.

Accompanied by his attractive wife, the former Margaretta "Happy" Murphy, the governor glad-handed through the Capitol on his way to a luncheon in the Senate dining room arranged by Sens. Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating, New York Republicans.

Senate minority leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois dropped in to pay his respects.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, who has said she is considering entering the March New Hampshire presidential primary as a "third choice" between Rockefeller and Goldwater, made a special trip to shake hands with the governor and his wife.

One by one, other GOP senators came to the table to exchange greetings.

... BRITISH NIX APPEAL

Paris (UPI) — The United States asked its Atlantic allies Monday to slow down trade with the Soviet Union and Communist bloc nations and to stop granting long-term credit to them.

Refusal to set up controls, a U.S. statement said, would mean giving assistance to the Russians in building up their war machine and also would help ease the Soviet farm crisis.

Britain flatly rejected the appeal.

The U.S. position was presented by Undersecretary of State George W. Ball to a special 4½-hour session of the permanent council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He called for an end to credit longer than five years.

Britisher Blunt

Edward Heath, president of Britain's Board of Trade, told the council in blunt terms that his government is unwilling to make any such commitment. He said Britain is determined to press forward with trade among Communist nations in non-strategic goods.

ported by Paul Martin, Canadian minister of external affairs. He said trade with the Communist bloc in non-strategic goods can help ease international tensions. Martin said the Red nations should not be "isolated."

Almost all other members of the council, however, either supported the United States or remained neutral.

The Six Argue

Reliable sources reported that all six European members of the Common Market — France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg — argued that they have, in practice, never granted credits longer than five years and that there is no reason why this policy should not become general.

Rolf Lahr, state secretary of the West German foreign office, was said to have urged that any new trade concessions to the Soviets should only be granted in exchange for Kremlin pledges to abandon the policy of a divided Germany and threats to isolate West Berlin.

The Scandinavians and other smaller NATO countries were said to have remained noncommittal.

Further Study

With the council deadlocked, it was agreed to turn the issue over to the NATO secretariat for further study. It probably will be raised again in the full NATO Council of Ministers in December.

Before the council session, Ball held a 45-minute conference with French Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing. Later, he met for 45 minutes with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

Tuesday, Ball will head the U.S. delegation at a two-day session of the Council of Ministers of the 22-member Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD).

Rocky Takes His Campaign Up To Capitol Hill

Washington (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller brought his presidential candidate image to Capitol Hill Monday for smiling exposure to congressional Republicans of all shades of opinion.

But the indications were that, outside of his state's two GOP senators, the New York governor got few if any promises of support in what now shapes up as a strenuous contest with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., for the 1964 nomination.

Rockefeller told reporters that he was making "no endeavor to get any commitments."

But this did not bar informal conversation about future prospects and it was reported that the governor got no immediate encouragement in one situation where he is seeking help.

Kuchel Wants Time

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., made it clear he wants more time to consult with home-state associates before deciding whether to head a Rockefeller delegate slate in the California presidential primary next June.

Accompanied by his attractive wife, the former Margaretta "Happy" Murphy, the governor glad-handed through the Capitol on his way to a luncheon in the Senate dining room arranged by Sens. Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating, New York Republicans.

Senate minority leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois dropped in to pay his respects.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, who has said she is considering entering the March New Hampshire presidential primary as a "third choice" between Rockefeller and Goldwater, made a special trip to shake hands with the governor and his wife.

One by one, other GOP senators came to the table to exchange greetings.

Council Amends, Defers Trailer Court Measure

A proposed trailer court ordinance was amended Monday by the City Council after public hearing, but final reading was deferred for one week.

Major amendment was a "grandfather clause" recognizing the minimum space requirements between trailers or trailers and buildings as established by previous ordinances.

The new measure adopts the 25-foot minimum in effect since May 2, 1961, but would permit a 20-foot minimum for courts constructed between

Nov. 7, 1953, and May, 1961, and a six-foot minimum prior to Nov. 7, 1953.

Generally Acceptable
Attorney Don Marti, representing the Lancaster County Mobile Homes Association, said the new code is generally acceptable to the industry, but urged changes on "our provisions."

He requested a grandfather clause on minimum space requirements, or a new minimum of 18 feet with a reasonable grace period for compliance.

Marti said a 25-foot minimum without a saving clause would drive some local courts out of business with a loss of investment.

Adopting Marti's other recommendations, the council struck the requirements for a service building in courts serving "independent" trailers (those having their own sanitary facilities) and for garbage can racks.

Clause Added
A provision requiring through access roads was retained, but with a grandfather clause added.

Several trailer court owners spoke on the measure, largely to object to a new minimum space requirement, that they said would prove an economic hardship to existing trailer court layouts.

Council action on other ordinances:

—Introducing, First Reading

—Creating zoning district for Valley View Addition near 31st and Pioneer Blvd.

Adopted, Third Reading

—Annexation to the city of area south of Superior and east of 14th.

—Accepting plat of Taylor Park Addition near 2nd and O and L.

—Ordinance prohibiting electrically charged fences within the city limits.

All council members were present for the regular meeting.

Revisions Proposed In Lincoln's Traffic Code

Several revisions in Lincoln's traffic code were introduced Monday before the City Council with final reading scheduled Dec. 4.

The two major changes involve pedestrian right of way and racing on the streets, according to city officials.

One would give the pedestrian the right of way when within two feet of entering a crosswalk, except at intersections otherwise controlled by automatic signals or a police officer.

No Contests
The other would make it unlawful "for any person to engage in any motor vehicle speed contest or exhibition of speed upon a street."

City officials said the measure, patterned after a California law, would make street racing unlawful "per se" without requiring proof of excessive speeds or reckless acts.

Another revision would permit a driver, "unable to stop safely before entering the crosswalk on a yellow light," to proceed cautiously through the intersection to clear the crosswalk and intersection.

City officials said that the proposed revisions in the city traffic code were patterned after the Uniform Traffic Code.

In other action the council:

—Received for study a requested communication from attorney Merrill Kelley regarding cases in which he contends constitutional safeguards regarding arrest or entry were violated.

—Accepted Low Bid
—Accepted the low bid of Pioneer Paving, $99,048 for Paving District 1822 for Huntington Addition near 66th and A, and of Dabson Bros. Construction, $6,230, for Paving District 1906 on 57th from 1st to 2nd, east of 57th.

—Accepted low bid of $45,000 by Chambers Construction Co. for Water District 619 for Fletcher Ave. from 56th to 66th and 56th from Fletcher to 1,000 feet north.

—Confirmed the appointments of Forest Boyum and Everett Green as members of the Board of Warm Air Heating Examiners for terms expiring in 1965.

—Received a report that the Missouri Pacific Railroad will begin removal of the North 5th viaduct over its tracks this week, because the structure is hazardous and unrepairable.

Sugar Factory's Fate Dependent On '64 Crop

... Improved Yields Possible, Says NU Specialist

Lexington — People of the Central Platte Valley have only one crop year in which to add a million or more dollars to their income or else lose an industry, Dr. John Wehling, University of Nebraska Extension plant pathologist said here Monday night.

He addressed the 12th annual corn meeting sponsored by the Dawson County Extension Service and the University of Nebraska.

The threatened industry is sugar beets. Wehling said officials of the American Crystal Sugar Company had told him that they would be forced to close their sugar factory in Grand Island if next year's beet crop in the area is as poor as it was this year.

The Grand Island factory is the oldest continuously operating sugar factory in the United States.

"Results of three years of testing show that beet growers can increase their yield an average of five tons during the next year and have a substantial increase in sugar percentage," Wehling said.

"Such an increase with normal acreage for that area would result in an additional million dollar return to producers," he said. "This would make the sugar beet industry profitable both to the farmer, the processor, and to business as a whole."

One of the problems producers in the area face is Cercospora leaf spot, Wehling said, a fungus disease which cuts both yield and sugar content of the beets.

It was the seriousness of this problem in the area that resulted in Wehling and other NU scientists being called in three years ago to try to find an answer.

The Extension specialists have been working closely with American Crystal Sugar Company.

The company not only wants to save its Grand Island plant, but has indicated a willingness to increase its present contracted acreage from 10,000 to 15,000 and expand its factory, if production can be brought to a profitable rate.

Proper use of knowledge now available can turn the tide, Wehling said.

The fungicide Maneb does a good job of controlling the leaf spot, he said, and a German-developed chemical promises to do an even better job if it can be cleared to use in this country.

There are still mechanical problems involved in applying the needed four or five applications of fungicide, Wehling admitted, but these also can be resolved.

The fungicide must be applied with a high pressure sprayer to be most effective. The problem here is using ground equipment in irrigated fields, he said.

However, he pointed out, a specially designed spray plane also has done an acceptable job. If this plane were to be used, the problem then would become one of organizing the beet growers of the valley to contract for use of the plane.

Another problem, the answer to which could still further increase the average production, Wehling said, is to get the farmers to treat their beets with the same respect they show for their corn.

Corn is king in the area, he said, and gets first call for both water and cultivation. While sugar beets are more drought resistant than corn, the following of recommended cultural practices can pay off better than with corn, acre for acre. This is because beets are a high-value cash crop.

To illustrate the value of proper care of beets, Wehling cited results from 1962 test plots near Grand Island.

Beet production in the area has been running around 14 tons to the acre with sugar content as low as 11 per cent.

Testing only for leaf spot control showed a possible increase of six tons per acre and a jump in sugar content from 13.02 to 14.58%.

The gross income figure for the untreated control plot was $162.61 per acre, while the plot treated with Maneb showed a gross return of $260.62 per acre.

The total cost of spraying should not exceed $20 per acre, Wehling said.

Big Sled Dog Chews Small Boy To Death

Woodstock, Ill. (P)—A four-month-old boy was attacked and chewed to death Monday by an 80-pound sled dog, purchased for a watchdog.

James Michael Henderson died in the Woodstock Memorial Hospital emergency room shortly after he was mauled and bitten more than a dozen times by the Alaskan Malamute.

Woodstock Police Chief George Meyers said the dog, named Jack, squeezed through the door of the garage where it was kennelled and dragged the baby from the front seat of the family auto.

Mr. and Mrs. James Henderson, parents of the infant were preparing to leave to drive to the hunting lodge near Alden, Ill., where Henderson works as a dog trainer and hunting guide, Chief Meyers said.

They had returned to the house for something, leaving ajar the front door of the auto while the baby rested on the seat. Henderson's wife, Kathryn, 17, had intended to feed the baby during the drive.

The Malamute was impounded for rabies tests after the attack. The veterinarian who captured it said he had to give it two tranquilizer shots to handle it.

Henderson, a recently discharged Navy veteran, said he wanted to put the dog to death. "I don't want to take the chance of this happening again," he said.

They'll Hunt In Woods

Helsinki (P)—Finnish President Urho Kekkonen, who bagged four elk last fall, has been invited to go hunting with Premier Khrushchev later this month in the woods around Moscow, officials announced.

Service Road At 9th And O To Be Closed

Mayor Dean Petersen Monday authorized the closing of the "south service road" at the O Street Viaduct to speed up turning traffic at 9th and O.

Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger said that the closing of the service road would permit unrestricted right turns off the viaduct for traffic southbound on 9th.

"With the service road closed," he said, "right turns from the viaduct south on 9th can be made on the right light."

He said the peak hour number of right turns was 1,147 between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. as compared with 18 vehicles turning from the service road.

"Most of this service road traffic originated on 7th or 8th and could utilize the 9th and N intersection," he explained. "The road will be open for parking and traffic movement under the viaduct."

Holsinger said the move would "almost completely eliminate the 9th and O viaduct congestion" and "cut 20 minutes off the traffic backup on the viaduct."

9th Sunday Law Order Issued By Judge Here

Lancaster District Judge Bartlett Boyles Monday issued a ninth restraining order enjoining officials from enforcing the Sunday closing law. The latest order affects Wagey Drug Co.

Judge Boyles set Dec. 5 for hearing on a temporary injunction suit filed Monday by Harold C. Wagey.

Named defendants are Gov. Frank Morrison, Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer, County Atty.

Paul Douglas, Sheriff Merle Karnopp, City Atty. Ralph Nelson and Police Chief Joseph Carroll.

The petition asks that LB710 which prohibits the sale of certain commodities on Sunday, be declared void.

Hearing on similar petition filed by Knight's Family Store and Donmar Pharmacy will also be held Dec. 5.

Judge Boyles has continued restraining orders issued for Four-Star Drug, Skagway the QP Store, Bradford Drug Family Drug and Allen's Alley.

He is expected to rule on the continued cases after receiving all briefs from attorneys for the various firms.

Jerry Lewis Quitting Show On Television

Hollywood (UPI)—Jerry Lewis announced Monday that he and the American Broadcasting Co. will discontinue the comedian's two-hour weekly television show, effective Dec. 14.

In a formal announcement, Lewis' office said:

"Despite a firm 40-week commitment, the network has granted Lewis' request to withdraw the show due to extreme differences of opinion regarding its format."

Lewis said that since the differences of opinion had little chance of being solved in the immediate future, it is much better to call a halt to the show and make a fresh start some time in the future.

Low ratings and a withering critical reaction contributed to the demise of the show which had been labeled a "bomb" in video circles.

Omaha (P)—Clarence J. O'Donnell, 70, was killed Monday when his car and a truck collided in Omaha. Police said that O'Donnell's car veered into the lane of the truck driven by Thomas C. Haite 24, Omaha.

The death was the 302nd Nebraska traffic fatality of the year, compared to 351 or Nov. 18 last year.

Major amendment was a "grandfather clause" recognizing the minimum space requirements between trailers or trailers and buildings as established by previous ordinances.

The new measure adopts the 25-foot minimum in effect since May 2, 1961, but would permit a 20-foot minimum for courts constructed between

Nov. 7, 1953, and May, 1961, and a six-foot minimum prior to Nov. 7, 1953.

Generally Acceptable

Attorney Don Marti, representing the Lancaster County Mobile Homes Association, said the new code is generally acceptable to the industry, but urged changes on four provisions.

He requested a grandfather clause on minimum space requirements, or a new minimum of 18 feet with a reasonable grace period for compliance.

Marti said a 25-foot minimum without a saving clause would drive some local courts out of business with a loss of investment.

Adopting Marti's other recommendations, the council struck the requirements for a service building in courts serving "independent" trailers (those having their own sanitary facilities) and for garbage can racks.

Clause Added

A provision requiring through access roads was retained, but with a grandfather clause added.

Several trailer court owners spoke on the measure, largely to object to a new minimum space requirement, that they said would prove an economic hardship to existing trailer court layouts.

Service Road At 9th And O To Be Closed

Mayor Dean Petersen Monday authorized the closing of the "south service road" at the O Street Viaduct to speed up turning traffic at 9th and O.

Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger said that the closing of the service road would permit unrestricted right turns off the viaduct for traffic southbound on 9th.

"With the service road closed," he said, "right turns from the viaduct south on 9th can be made on the right light."

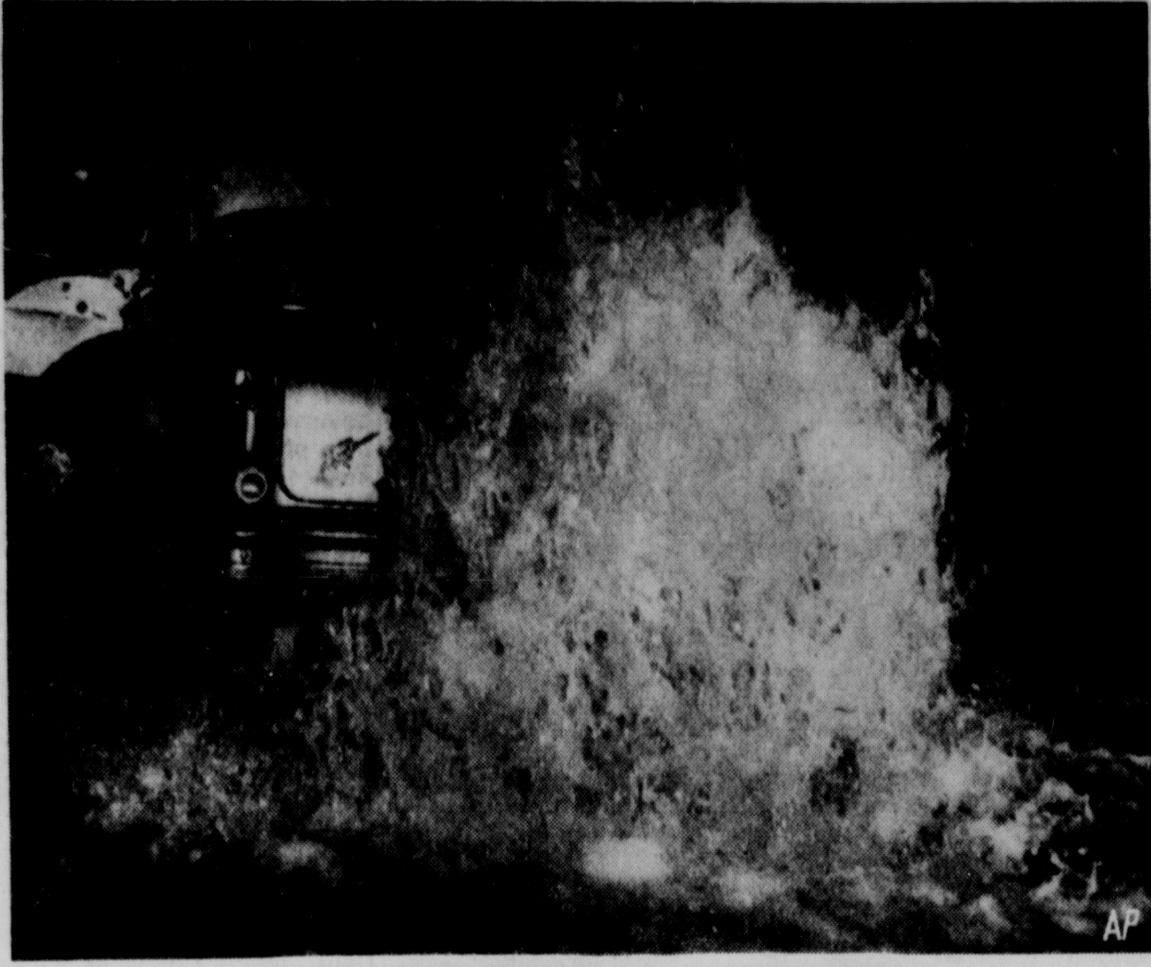

He said the peak hour number of right turns was 1,147 between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. as compared with 18 vehicles turning from the service road.

"Most of this service road traffic originated on 7th or 8th and could utilize the 9th and N intersection," he explained. "The road will be open for parking and traffic movement under the viaduct."

Holsinger said the move would "almost completely eliminate the 9th and O viaduct congestion" and "cut 20 minutes off the traffic back-up on the viaduct."

Sugar Factory's Fate Dependent On '64 Crop

... Improved Yields Possible, Says NU Specialist

Lexington — People of the Central Platte Valley have only one crop year in which to add a million or more dollars to their income or else lose an industry, Dr. John Wehling, University of Nebraska Extension plant pathologist said here Monday night.

He addressed the 12th annual corn meeting sponsored by the Dawson County Extension Service and the University of Nebraska.

The threatened industry is sugar beets. Wehling said officials of the American Crystal Sugar Company had told him that they would be forced to close their sugar factory in Grand Island if next year's beet crop in the area is as poor as it was this year.

The Grand Island factory is the oldest continuously operating sugar factory in the United States.

"Results of three years of testing show that beet growers can increase their yield an average of five tons during the next year and have a substantial increase in sugar percentage," Wehling said.

"Such an increase with normal acreage for that area would result in an additional million dollar return to producers," he said. "This would make the sugar beet industry profitable both to the farmer, the processor, and to business as a whole."

One of the problems producers in the area face is Cercospora leaf spot, Wehling said, a fungus disease which cuts both yield and sugar content of the beets.

It was the seriousness of this problem in the area that resulted in Wehling and other NU scientists being called in three years ago to try to find an answer.

The Extension specialists have been working closely with American Crystal Sugar Company.

The company not only wants to save its Grand Island plant, but has indicated a willingness to increase its present contracted acreage from 10,000 to 15,000 and expand its factory, if production can be brought to a profitable rate.

Proper use of knowledge now available can turn the tide, Wehling said.

The fungicide Maneb does a good job of controlling the leaf spot, he said, and a German-developed chemical promises to do an even better job if it can be cleared to use in this country.

Big Sled Dog Chews Small Boy To Death

Woodstock, Ill. (P) — A four-month-old boy was attacked and chewed to death Monday by an 80-pound sled dog, purchased for a watchdog.

James Michael Henderson died in the Woodstock Memorial Hospital emergency room shortly after he was mauled and bitten more than a dozen times by the Alaskan Malamute.

Woodstock Police Chief George Meyers said the dog, named Jack, squeezed through the door of the garage where it was kennelled and dragged the baby from the front seat of the family auto.

Mr. and Mrs. James Henderson, parents of the infant were preparing to leave to drive to the hunting lodge near Alden, Ill., where Henderson works as a dog trainer and hunting guide, Chief Meyers said.

They had returned to the house for something, leaving ajar the front door of the auto while the baby rested on the seat. Henderson's wife, Kathryn, 17, had intended to feed the baby during the drive.

The Malamute was impounded for rabies tests after the attack. The veterinarian who captured it said he had to give it two tranquilizer shots to handle it.

Henderson, a recently discharged Navy veteran, said he wanted to put the dog to death. "I don't want to take the chance of this happening again," he said.

9th Sunday Law Order Issued By Judge Here

Lancaster District Judge Bartlett Boyles Monday issued a ninth restraining order enjoining officials from enforcing the Sunday closing law. The latest order affects Wagey Drug Co.

Judge Boyles set Dec. 5 for hearing on a temporary injunction suit filed Monday by Harold C. Wagey.

Named defendants are Gov. Frank Morrison, Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer, County Atty.

Paul Douglas, Sheriff Merle Karnopp, City Atty. Ralph Nelson and Police Chief Joseph Carroll.

The petition asks that LB710, which prohibits the sale of certain commodities on Sunday, be declared void.

Hearing on similar petitions filed by Knight's Family Store and Donmar Pharmacy will also be held Dec. 5.

Judge Boyles has continued restraining orders issued for Four-Star Drug, Skagway, the QP Store, Bradford Drug, Family Drug and Allen's Alley.

Jerry Lewis Quitting Show On Television

Hollywood (UPI)—Jerry Lewis announced Monday that he and the American Broadcasting Co. will discontinue the comedian's two-hour weekly television show, effective Dec. 14.

In a formal announcement, Lewis' office said: "Despite a firm 40-week commitment, the network has granted Lewis' request to withdraw the show due to extreme differences of opinion regarding its format."

Lewis said that since the differences of opinion had little chance of being solved in the immediate future, it is much better to call a halt to the show and make a fresh start some time in the future.

Low-ratings and a withering critical reaction contributed to the demise of the show which had been labeled a "bomb" in video circles.

CAR, TRUCK HIT; OMAHA KILLED

Omaha (P)—Clarence J. O'Donnell, 70, was killed Monday when his car and a truck collided in Omaha. Police said that O'Donnell's car veered into the lane of the truck driven by Thomas C. Haite, 24, Omaha.

The death was the 302nd Nebraska traffic fatality of the year, compared to 351 on Nov. 18 last year.

'DEFENSE SOLE CONSIDERATION IN TFX AWARD'

Washington (AP) — The No. 2 man in the Defense Department testified Monday that the TFX warplane contract was awarded on the basis of "consideration of national defense, and nothing else."

The testimony came from Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatrick as the Senate investigations subcommittee began its final scheduled round of questioning Defense Department witnesses about the award which ultimately is expected to cost $3 billion or more.

Gilpatrick read his statement shortly after the subcommittee began taking open testimony. All previous testimony in the investigation which began Feb. 26 has been in closed sessions, with censored transcripts later made public.

The Right Decision
Gilpatrick swore that he is as convinced now, as he was last year, that "the decision to select the General Dynamics proposal for the TFX contract was the right one." The contract for the TFX—tactical fighter, experimental—was awarded to the Fort Worth, Tex., division of General Dynamics Corp., even though the Boeing Co. of Seattle entered a lower bid and had the backing of military experts at the Pentagon.

Gilpatrick said that he formed his opinion about the TFX contract independently of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, but that McNamara made the final decision. He added, "The decision would have been the same if I hadn't had any part."

Gilpatrick said he reads a 60-page summary of findings by Navy and Air Force experts on the competing bids over the weekend of Nov. 10-11, 1962, and expressed his opinion the following Nov. 13.

Better Design
Gilpatrick, as have other civil vian leaders at the Pentagon, said Monday he believes General Dynamics' design was less complex, involved less risk of failure, would prove in the long run to be less expensive, and could be delivered to the Air Force and Navy sooner than Boeing's.

Gilpatrick's statement came after Subcommittee Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., opened the session saying:

"We should like to ascertain whether any conflicts of interest or any undue influences were present; whether there were any breaches of ethical conduct; whether the decision was based on merit or if it was arbitrarily made; and whether poor judgment was exercised in making the selection between the two contenders."

Earlier testimony developed that Gilpatrick's New York law firm had done some $126,000 worth of business for General Dynamics prior to the time he became deputy secretary of defense in 1961.

The Justice Department has said it found no conflict of interest violation by Gilpatrick in the TFX case.

AFL-CIO Battles Bias

New York (AP) — Warned that Negroes are losing faith in the labor movement, the AFL-CIO urged its 13.5 million members Monday to fight racial discrimination everywhere.

But it slapped down a move to adopt language by its only Negro vice president charging "failure of labor to throw its full weight into the civil rights revolution."

The 1,200 convention delegates adopted a strong civil rights resolution after refusing to include the critical language of A. Philip Randolph.

Meany Refuses
"I refuse to accept the idea that the American trade union movement should be scolded and berated because it is not doing enough," said AFL-CIO President George Meany.

Meany said he could remember when labor was "the one segment of American society that was out in front fighting in this field — and we didn't have too much help."

Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, said, "There is a growing feeling of alienation from the labor movement in the Negro community."

A move from the convention floor to adopt his speech

Strongly Favors
Meany said the AFL-CIO strongly favored demands of the civil rights movement, but added:

"I don't buy the idea . . . that the way to get those things is to abuse its friends."

He said, "This problem is an old one and we've got to do more than pass resolutions and change laws . . . We've got to change the thinking of people."

The civil rights resolution was passed unanimously by voice vote after a Negro delegate said, "We want jobs; we want freedom . . . The time is now."

The delegate, Leo Smith of the International Electrical Workers Union, warned of a blood bath that would make past racial strife "look like a tea party" unless Negroes win what he termed full freedom.

The resolution demands stronger federal measures and urges all AFL-CIO unions to help wipe out racial discrimination in all facets of life.

'Real Good Job'
"If we carry it out, I think we'll do a real good job," Meany said.

Before the vote on incorporating Randolph's speech, Meany said:

"If you are not satisfied with it, send it back to the (resolutions) committee." The amendment was easily defeated and the resolution shouted through without change.

Some delegates said afterward they felt Randolph's views were covered in the resolution, which says:

"We must set our own house in order, removing the last vestiges of racial discrimination from the ranks of the AFL-CIO . . ."

"We must cooperate with our neighbors in the general community to assure every American the full rights of citizenship."

U.S. Boots Cuban Guantanamo Stand

United Nations, N.Y. (AP)—The United States rejected Monday Cuba's demand that the Guantanamo Naval Base be given up as the price for establishing a nuclear free zone in Latin America.

Charles C. Stelle, U.S. disarmament negotiator, also told the General Assembly's Main Political Committee that the United States would vote against a resolution seeking an international conference for drawing up a treaty outlawing use of nuclear weapons.

Cuban Ambassador Carlos M. Lechuga declared that before his country would agree to any proposal to ban nuclear weapons from Latin America the United States would have to agree to put Puerto Rico and the Panama Canal in the proposed zone.

He added also that the United States would have to abandon its big naval installation at Guantanamo, which he described as a base being used by U.S. intelligence agents for "sabotage and murder" in Cuba.

Cuba's stand appeared to weaken considerably any effectiveness for a resolution sponsored by 10 Latin American nations asking for studies on how to establish a nuclear free zone.

The United States, which will vote for the resolution, has made clear that it will not support actual establishment of a Latin American free zone unless it includes all countries in the area.

Unacceptable to U.S.

Stelle asserted that Lechuga had excused Cuba from support of the resolution "by enumerating certain conditions which, as he well knows, are unacceptable."

He referred to Lechuga's remarks as "intemperate" and reiterated the U.S.

position that the Fidel Castro regime had betrayed the revolution.

Lechuga retorted that this amounted to playing "the same old cracked record," and said that even if the charge were true it was an internal matter of no concern to the United States.

E. R. Richardson, delegate from Jamaica, said his country would support the Latin American resolution, but added that if Cuba's participation in the free zone was impossible, Jamaica would have to reconsider its position.

N. M. Belousov, delegate from the Soviet Ukraine, said his country understood the Cuban position. But the communist bloc speaker appealed for approval of the idea of denuclearized zone, saying it would be a manifestation of the "spirit of Moscow" that developed after signing of the nuclear test ban treaty.

REP. VINSON IS 80, TO RETIRE

Washington (AP)—One of the enduring monuments of Congress, Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., turned 80 Monday and said he will retire at the end of his present term.

Vinson has served in the House of Representatives longer than any man in history — it will be 50 years on Nov. 14 next year.

In the course of half century here, the small-town lawyer from Milledgeville, Ga., became an unquestioned autocrat of things military as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

Bowing And Scraping

Over the years some generals and admirals have bowed and scraped before him in almost comical deference while he seemed to make a point of not remembering their names.

Vinson is one of the half dozen or so men who wield the real power in the House.

Along with the deference of the brass came tremendous respect of his colleagues for the vast and detailed knowledge of the sprawling defense establishment that is locked in Vinson's brain.

They nicknamed him "The Swamp Fox," "Admiral of the Ocean Sea," but mainly "Uncle Carl."

Blue-eyed and eagle-beaked, with a twangy, cornpone-flavored voice, Vinson runs his committee with a firm hand. He once told a colleague the secret is not to get all the members mad at him at once. Separately, he can handle them.

Once when his name was mentioned as the next secretary of defense, Vinson said, "Shucks, I'd rather go on running the Pentagon from up here."

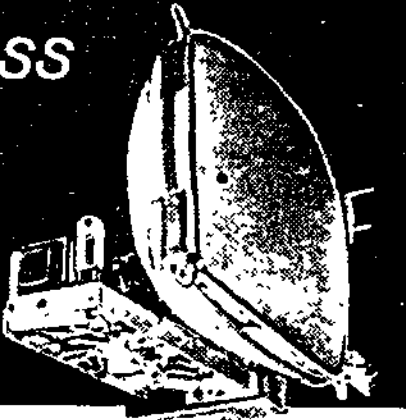

He had a sharp run-in with the current secretary, Robert S. McNamara, over McNamara's plans to shelve production of the controversial RS70 supersonic bomber.

Vinson got his committee to the point of passing a bill "directing McNamara to continue with the RS70."

U.S. Boots Cuban Guantanamo Stand

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — The United States rejected Monday Cuba's demand that the Guantanamo Naval Base be given up as the price for establishing a nuclear free zone in Latin America.

Charles C. Stelle, U.S. disarmament negotiator, also told the General Assembly's Main Political Committee that the United States would vote against a resolution seeking an international conference for drawing up a treaty outlawing use of nuclear weapons.

Cuban Ambassador Carlos M. Lechuga declared that before his country would agree to any proposal to ban nuclear weapons from Latin America the United States would have to agree to put Puerto Rico and the Panama Canal in the proposed zone.

He added also that the United States would have to abandon its big naval installation at Guantanamo, which he described as a base being used by U.S. intelligence agents for "sabotage and murder" in Cuba.

Cuba's stand appeared to weaken considerably any effectiveness for a resolution sponsored by 10 Latin American nations asking for studies on how to establish a nuclear free zone.

The United States, which will vote for the resolution, has made clear that it will not support actual establishment of a Latin American free zone unless it includes all countries in the area.

Unacceptable to U.S. Stelle asserted that Lechuga had excused Cuba from support of the resolution "by enumerating certain conditions which, as he well knows, are unacceptable."

He referred to Lechuga's remarks as "intemperate" and reiterated the U.S. position that the Fidel Castro regime had betrayed the revolution.

Lechuga retorted that this amounted to playing "the same old cracked record," and said that even if the charge were true it was an internal matter of no concern to the United States.

E. R. Richardson, delegate from Jamaica, said his country would support the Latin American resolution, but added that if Cuba's participation in the free zone was impossible, Jamaica would have to reconsider its position.

N. M. Belousov, delegate from the Soviet Ukraine, said his country understood the Cuban position. But the communist bloc speaker appealed for approval of the idea of denuclearized zone, saying it would be a manifestation of the "spirit of Moscow" that developed after signing of the nuclear test ban treaty.

REP. VINSON IS 80, TO RETIRE

Washington (AP) — One of the enduring monuments of Congress, Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., turned 80 Monday and said he will retire at the end of his present term.

Vinson has served in the House of Representatives longer than any man in history — it will be 50 years on Nov. 14 next year.

In the course of half century here, the small-town lawyer from Milledgeville, Ga., became an unquestioned autocrat of things military as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

Bowing And Scraping Over the years some generals and admirals have bowed and scraped before him in almost comical deference while he seemed to make a point of not remembering their names.

Vinson is one of the half dozen or so men who wield the real power in the House.

Along with the deference of the brass came tremendous respect of his colleagues for the vast and detailed knowledge of the sprawling defense establishment that is locked in Vinson's brain.

They nicknamed him "The Swamp Fox," "Admiral of the Ocean Sea," but mainly "Uncle Carl."

Eagle-Beaked Blue-eyed and eagle-beaked, with a twangy, cornpone-flavored voice, Vinson runs his committee with a firm hand. He once told a colleague the secret is not to get all the members mad at him at once. Separately, he can handle them.

Once when his name was mentioned as the next secretary of defense, Vinson said, "Shucks, I'd rather go on running the Pentagon from up here."

He had a sharp run-in with the current secretary, Robert S. McNamara, over McNamara's plans to shelve production of the controversial RS70 supersonic bomber.

Vinson got his committee to the point of passing a bill "directing McNamara to continue with the RS70."

Walk With JFK But the day before the vote, President Kennedy invited Vinson to stroll with him in the White House Rose Garden, and afterwards the mandatory wording was stricken. McNamara had won. But the respect between McNamara and Vinson is mutual and apparently unfeigned.

At an intimate little birthday luncheon in the speaker's dining room Monday, McNamara said, "Through his wisdom we have military strength and security . . . I don't think any man in this century has contributed as much to military security."

For himself, Vinson said, "Life begins at 80," and added that he didn't think anyone was interested in hearing him reminisce about the 10 speakers he has served under or "the number of times I have walked in the Rose Garden."

He ended by saying, "I am singularly blessed on my 80th birthday to be surrounded by some of the finest friends a man was ever privileged to have." The group rose to its feet and applauded.

Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., who is in line to succeed Vinson as chairman of the Armed Services Committee, "We don't want to see him go," and added he hopes Vinson will change his mind about retiring.

Long Silver Mane Rivers, who wears his silver hair in a long flowing mane, was born in Gumville, S. C., and attended the College of Charleston and the University of South Carolina. He is a lawyer and has been second ranking Democrat on the committee for years.

Lincoln, Fremont Seek Sewage Funds

The State Board of Health Monday was informed that separate requests by Lincoln and Fremont for federal pollution control funds next year will total more than a million dollars.

Fremont has already applied for $430,500 toward a proposed $1,435,000 sewage treatment plant while Lincoln plans to ask for $600,000 toward a $1,700,000 treatment plant improvement program.

T. A. Filipi, director of the Health Department's division of environmental diseases, told the board that these two applications nearly equal the amount of such federal funds Nebraska can expect next year.

But he said the two applications may enable Nebraska to obtain extra funds. "We may be able to ask for re-allotments for funds other states don't use," he explained.

Filipi said his division just recently processed the 195th application for federal sewage treatment funds by Nebraska communities since the program began in 1954.

Filipi also disclosed that the State Water Pollution Control Council has undertaken a huge study of the Omaha area to determine if it would be feasible to construct one major sewage treatment plant to serve both Omaha and surrounding communities in Douglas and Sarpy counties. He said presently the two-county area has more than 160 sanitation districts and 17 different sewage plants.

One huge trunk sewer connected with a large treatment plant complex would eliminate duplication, Filipi said.

Osteopath Put On Examiners Board

The State Health Board created history Monday afternoon.

It named Dr. George P. Taylor of Sidney to a five-year term on the State Board of Examiners in Medicine and Surgery and thus ended a long uphill battle by Nebraska osteopaths to gain unlimited medical rights in the Cornhusker State.

A bill, LB665, passed by the 1963 Legislature, called for the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Surgery to be increased from five to six members with the extra board member being a licensed, practicing osteopath. It marked the first time an osteopath was named to the board.

Will Conduct Inspections

The Board of Examiners will now conduct inspections of the five colleges of osteopathy in the United States to see if they meet accredited medical school standards. The five schools are located at Kirksville, Mo., Philadelphia, Pa., Des Moines, Iowa, Chicago, Ill., and Kansas City, Mo. Only those osteopaths who graduate from an accredited college and pass the state medical examination will be allowed full medical and surgical rights.

The health board also reappointed Dr. Leo T. Heywood of Omaha to a five-year term on the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Surgery.

Other examining board appointments or reappointments:

Feed Manufacturers Begin 3-Day Seminar

What goes into commercially prepared livestock feed sold to farmers received detailed study as 150 members and visitors from 28 states and Canada began a three-day seminar presented by the Midwest Feed Manufacturer's Association at the Nebraska Center.

Lloyd S. Larson, executive vice president of the Association said that the question most prominent among feedmen is, "What will make the farmers the most profit?"

Capturing the attention of the manufacturers was an automatic protein analyzer, on display for the first time, that provides a complete chemical analysis of feed in 145 minutes.

Previously, a protein test alone required nearly six hours, explained technicians in charge of the new equipment.

The manufacturers say that saving time on protein analysis is especially important to the Midwest, where increasing amounts of grain sorghum are being used in commercial feeds.

Dr. William E. Hall, professor of Educational Psychology, University of Nebraska, told the group, "The search for new lands, new products and new means of production is not gone. Improving the quality of the product is a goal to be sought today as eagerly and tenaciously as in the day of our forefathers."

Board Eyes School Land Overplanting

The State Board of Educational Lands and Funds discussed Monday a possible policy of opposing any overplanting of wheat acreage allotments on leased school lands.

Board members Clive Short of Chadron and Harry Garber of Imperial suggested a board policy requiring leaseholders to stay within acreage allotments on land seeded to winter wheat, but no formal board action was taken.

Under current federal regulations, overplanting and overproduction of wheat will reduce future acreage allotments. Such overplanting would tend to reduce the productive value of the school lands, lead toward decreased valuation and lower cash rental payments, the board reasoned.

Short said overplanting should be considered the same as overgrazing, a practice to which the board objects.

BOARD OF HEALTH APPROVES HILL-BURTON ALLOCATIONS

The State Board of Health Monday approved recommendations by the Hospital Advisory Council for allocation of $1,759,347 of federal Hill-Burton hospital construction funds in Nebraska.

The principle recommendation by the council Oct. 31 was that expected Hill-Burton funds next year be allocated to the proposed new Western Nebraska Hospital and School of Nursing in Scottsbluff. Federal funds could pay up to 40% of the cost of the Scottsbluff project estimated at close to $2.5 million.

The Crete City Hospital was assured $51,259 toward construction of 30 new nursing home beds and the Douglas County Hospital was guaranteed $92,442 toward a total rehabilitation center this year as a result of the board's action.

All the other money available this year had been earmarked previously to hospital and related projects already under way.

News Of Guests In Suburbia

FIENE HEIGHTS

With the advent of cold weather, there will be many a sniffle, and even quite a few colds in Fiene Heights in the months to come.

Which reminds us of the remedies that used to be popular, such as sulfur and molasses or garlic suspended around the neck like costume jewelry. Cures such as the garlic bag, while undoubtedly potent in smell, might well have discouraged many a host from inviting the wearer to dinner.

However, there is enough entertaining planned in Fiene Heights this week to assure us that none of the guests have garlic bags to ward off colds.

The Saturday football game brings three pairs of visitors to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Yant. They are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Opocinski of Grand Island, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morton of North Platte, and Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Burgess of Omaha. The guests will stay overnight Saturday, and return home on Sunday.

Besides the attraction of football, a new baby always brings guests to a home, and such is the case of Lt. and Mrs. Charles Pyle and their new son, Craig Roger.

Craig, who was born Nov. 6, had as his first visitor from out-of-town his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Jack Walker of Portland, Ore., who arrived last week and will stay the remainder of this week.

Craig also will meet his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Pyle of Pine Bluff, Wyo., during the Thanksgiving holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hevelone had as a guest at their home on Friday Mrs. Hevelone's aunt, Mrs. David Clark of Ft. Collins, Colo.

And news of another addition to the guest list in Fiene Heights comes from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donavon Luedke. Mrs. Luedke's parents, Dr. and Mrs. L. I. Hines of Spencer, stopped in the suburb en route to Ocala, Fla., where they will spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moss spent Saturday in Agnew, attending the wedding of Miss Patricia Ann Barry and Robert Keenan.

KESSLER HEIGHTS

There will be an abundance of fun at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lowe tomorrow when their daughter, Kathleen, celebrates her seventh birthday with some school friends.

First, Kathleen and her guests will visit the Wayne West show after school, and then go to the Lowe home for ice cream, cake, and games.

Kathleen's guests will be Kristine Allgood, Martha Ann Bayley, Jan Blatchley, Courtney Bradsey, Avery Browne, Cindy Ann Drod, Elizabeth Edgecomb, Sandra Luedke, Ruth Ann Moss, Nancy Ann Naber, Rebecca Rotter, Deborah Ann Schrod, Rita Slepker, Connie Jo Thompson, Judy Well, Barbara and Raymond Seuss, and Kathleen's brother and sister, Daniel and Karen Lowe.

Saturday night dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Stoddard and their children, David and Sherry, Jan, Tim, and Kris Smith entertained the younger members of the Stoddard family, while their parents were host and hostess to Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard.

SOUTH BROOK SUMMIT

Spending the day in Seward on Saturday were Mrs. Robert Smith and her two daughters, Diane and Suzanne, who were visiting with Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Blacker.

While Mrs. Smith and the girls were in Seward, Mr. Smith and Steve motored to Columbus where Steve competed in the swim meet. The Smith family returned home on Saturday evening.

Inch seam allowance. For length, cut it one-and-a-half times to twice the circumference of the pillow.

3. Turn edge of strip under 1/4 inch to the wrong side at one end. Press. Fold strip in half lengthwise, wrong side to the inside and press. Stitch the raw edges of the strip together starting 1/4 inch from turned end and 1/4 inch from edge. Then, gather ruffle strip to proper length.

4. Pin ruffle all around edge of right side of one pillow section with raw edges even and ruffle facing to the inside of the circle. Stitch together. Place other pillow section on top of first, right sides together, and stitch, leaving a large enough opening for inserting pillow. Turn to right side, insert pillow and slip stitch opening closed.

1. Use knife edge form in any size you wish. First decide width of finished flange edge. Then cut two pieces of fabric the diameter of the form plus twice the width of the flange plus one-inch for seams. For instance, if the diameter of the pillow is 10 inches, and the width of the flange is 2 inches, cut the cover sections 10 inches plus 4 inches plus 1-inch=15 inches. For a square pillow, as shown here, cut two pieces 15" x 15". If the pillow is round, cut two complete circles 15 inches in diameter.

2. Match the center of the pillow and center of each cover section. Pin and stitch the two sections, right sides together, leaving an opening for inserting pillow. Press seam and clip corners diagonally. Turn to right side and shape corners. Insert pillow, match center markings on both sides and pin. Turn in the edges of the opening and slip stitch closed. Baste the cover sections together along the edge of the pillow an even distance from the edge all around and stitch. Be sure not to catch the pillow when stitching.

Patricia Scott has prepared a booklet, HOW TO ALTER YOUR DRESS PATTERNS, which gives complete instructions for altering so that finished garments will fit perfectly. For your copy of this guide to correct fitting, write to Patricia Scott in care of Box 158, Dundee, Ill. enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover costs of printing and handling.

The bidding:
East Pass South West North
Pass 1NT Pass 3NT

Opening lead — five of spades.

Good card play is an orderly process backed by sound reasoning. It requires thorough awareness of the goal to be reached, the dangers that exist along the way, and a careful selection of the plays necessary to attain the ultimate goal.

The one thing that can prove fatal in dummy play is to play by rote. It must be recognized that every hand is a new experience and that habits previously formed, which lead to automatic reactions, are not necessarily a reliable guide.

For example, take this hand where South is in three notrump and West leads a spade. It seems to be normal to win the spade with the queen and immediately attack the longest suit, clubs, but this would be the wrong way to play the hand.

In the actual case, if this were done, East would take the ace and return a spade, thus establishing West's spade suit. South would eventually be forced to take a heart finesse to obtain his ninth trick, but, when he attempted it, West would win with the king and cash his spades to defeat the contract a trick.

The fact is that the right play is to lead a low heart from dummy at trick two and finesse the queen. The certainty of building up an extra heart trick—whether the finesse wins or loses—takes precedence over the establishment of four club tricks.

If the finesse wins, declarer has nine tricks available after forcing out the ace of clubs, while if the finesse loses, he eventually gets nine tricks anyhow, because the jack of hearts becomes established as a trick in the course of taking the losing finesse.

The important difference between the two lines of play is that West cannot safely return a spade if it turns out that he has the king of hearts. He would be leading a spade into the A-J in that case.

By attacking hearts first, South prevents the dangerous opponent (East) from obtaining the lead for the killing spade return.

DEAR ABBY: Just before report-card time, our sixth grade teacher told us to write a paragraph grading HER on her personality and teaching ability. She said we could tell about her good points and bad points and nothing would be held against us. Well, I thought she really meant it, so I went ahead and told her what I thought of her. I guess maybe I didn't say enough about her good points and kind of went overboard on her bad points, because my mother just got a letter from the teacher telling everything I wrote, and saying how horrible it was of me. Now my mother is making me write an "I'm sorry" letter to the teacher. Do you think it was fair of this teacher? Also should I have to write that "I'm sorry" letter? I thank you.

A SIXTH GRADER
DEAR SIXTH GRADER: I think your teacher was extremely unfair! But your Mom is trying to teach you that although some people insist they want to hear the truth about themselves, if it's unflattering, they resent it. Mom is the boss, Honey, so write that letter, and remember the lesson.

DEAR ABBY: We are expecting our second child in December and we want to know if we should send out birth announcements. I have heard that it is proper to send such announcements for only the FIRST child. But we have many friends and relatives out of the state, and we'd like them to know about this new baby when it comes. What is proper?

K. F.
DEAR K. F.: It is entirely proper to send out a birth announcement for EACH new arrival.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

It Seems To Me That Extra Spot Of Color

Patricia Scott

Few accessories lend themselves so perfectly to adding that extra spot of color, as do pillows. Two very popular pillows for the bedroom are the ruffled edge and flange edge pillows. Use whatever fabric you wish as long as it is in keeping with your room decor.

Ruffled Pillow—Figure 1: 1. Use a knife edge form and cut 2 cover sections the same size as the pillow plus one-inch for seams.

2. Cut ruffle strip on the true bias or the crosswise grain. Cut it twice the width of the finished ruffle plus 1/2 inch seam allowance. For length, cut it one-and-a-half times to twice the circumference of the pillow.

3. Turn edge of strip under 1/4 inch to the wrong side at one end. Press. Fold strip in half lengthwise, wrong side to the inside and press. Stitch the raw edges of the strip together starting 1/4 inch from turned end and 1/4 inch from edge. Then, gather ruffle strip to proper length.

4. Pin ruffle all around edge of right side of one pillow section with raw edges even and ruffle facing to the inside of the circle. Stitch together. Place other pillow section on top of first, right sides together, and stitch, leaving a large enough opening for inserting pillow. Turn to right side, insert pillow and slip stitch opening closed.

1. Use knife edge form in any size you wish. First decide width of finished flange edge. Then cut two pieces of fabric the diameter of the form plus twice the width of the flange plus one-inch for seams. For instance, if the diameter of the pillow is 10 inches, and the width of the flange is 2 inches, cut the cover sections 10 inches plus 4 inches plus 1-inch=15 inches. For a square pillow, as shown here, cut two pieces 15" x 15". If the pillow is round, cut two complete circles 15 inches in diameter.

2. Match the center of the pillow and center of each cover section. Pin and stitch the two sections, right sides together, leaving an opening for inserting pillow. Press seam and clip corners diagonally. Turn to right side and shape corners. Insert pillow, match center markings on both sides and pin. Turn in the edges of the opening and slip stitch closed. Baste the cover sections together along the edge of the pillow an even distance from the edge all around and stitch. Be sure not to catch the pillow when stitching.

Patricia Scott has prepared a booklet, HOW TO ALTER YOUR DRESS PATTERNS, which gives complete instructions for altering so that finished garments will fit perfectly. After being exposed to a sharp TV campaign, I went right out and bought a food chopper. I am an impulse buyer. The kind department stores love.

I surely did not need this chopper — it is called a Veg-o-matic and the nudge on it was one of those come-on prices like $9.95. And when you get through with the sales tax you are in for over a saw-buck.

I didn't need it. But the ads were wonderful!

For one thing, this gadget chops French fries like a TV Western puts bullets out of a Colt .45.

Chop! French fries come out of the whole potato in one motion. Chop! Another potato is split in sections. Chop! Pretty soon you have enough to feed the guest list of a hotel. Chop!

That is the problem. I cannot quit chopping and I am running out of potatoes. It is like eating peanuts.

Anyway, we have been eating plenty of French fries lately. We are potato fed.

This is excellent for the potato people — there is a national Potato Chip Week. Did you know that? True. Once I interviewed a lady known as Miss Potato Chips of 19 something-or-other.

She wore a kind of bikini with potato chips glued on it. Very charming sight. All the reporters who interviewed her got a free bag of potato chips.

About potatoes. They had a bad deal in public relations.

At one time, the Scots would not eat them because they were mentioned in the Bible. The Scots ate a pudding made of sheep stomach which I do not recall when I was earning my Sunday school attendance stars. But they would not eat potatoes.

Early day doctors thought potatoes caused many ills. Such as leprosy and rickets, both of which are bad for you.

However, Frederick the Great was all for potatoes. He wanted the people to eat spuds so there would be other goodies for his army. He sent out seed potatoes and — this is quite a commercial idea — he sent a soldier along with the seed potatoes.

The soldier said: "You plant the potatoes or else we plant you."

The potato crop that year was a buster.

Marie Antoinette, the French queen who lost her head, once attended a State dinner wearing a potato flower headdress.

Vodka is made of potatoes. It is a versatile tuber.

This machine also chops onions into beautiful rings. One chop — chop! Potatoes and onions are pretty good when fried together. But I am getting mighty tired of them.

Still I cannot let the chopper alone. That is what TV did to me. I cannot remember the programs. But often wake up at night, unable to get the singing commercial out of my mind.

The chopper had no singing commercial. It was just a gadget and I had to have it. It does things too. Not that I

Human Rights Group Will Meet Thursday

The Governor's Commission on Human Rights will meet in the Statehouse Thursday at 2:30 p.m.

It will be the commission's third meeting since being appointed by Governor Morrison early last summer.

The Rev. James Stewart of the Omaha Roman Catholic Diocese, commission chairman, will hold a news conference at the Cornhusker Hotel at 11 a.m. and again at 5:30 p.m. Thursday.

want to dice anything. But the idea is sensational.

It is this sort of gadgetry that has put men into the kitchen. As soon as you get a gadget in the scatter, a man cannot let it alone.

If he does let it alone, you can be sure he soon gets emergency calls.

"Can you show me how to work this, dear? I don't understand the instructions. I suppose you think I'm terribly stupid but—"

The kitchen is full of mechanical gadgetry. The stove has four automatic timers — most of which go off in the middle of the night like a burglar alarm.

The refrigerator has automatic defrosting that requires setting dials. The various things you must set on a steam iron makes it look like an airplane instrument board.

Now we have the chopper. Who is the full-time mechanic? You aren't asking that seriously, are you?

Review Of Death Penalty Mandatory

Review by the Nebraska Supreme Court of the death penalty in murder cases is mandatory and automatic even when the condemned has pleaded guilty, according to an attorney general's opinion issued Monday.

The opinion said that LB-468, enacted in the regular 1963 legislative session, did not abolish or alter a previous statute requiring automatic review of the murder conviction where the death penalty has been imposed.

LB-468 permits the trial court to fix the sentence at death or life imprisonment without a trial if the accused pleads guilty. Previously, the case still had to go to a jury.

The opinion was requested by Douglas County Attorney Donald L. Knowles. It was written by Assistant Atty. Gen. Bernard L. Packeett and approved by Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer.

Now you see it. Now you don't. When a Chevy II does that kind of disappearing act you know without looking twice: It's a '64 with a V8 engine.

It's available for the first time this year along with a choice of three other engines—the standard 4 (in 100 Series sedans), the standard 6 and a new 155-hp 6.* (And all of them, you'll be happy to know, maintain their high spirits on modest amounts of regular gasoline.)

You can take this V8 through the gears most any way you choose —with personal encouragement from a 4-speed shift* if you like.

CHEVROLET

But the changes that have come over this new Chevy II aren't by any means confined to what happens when you slip into the driver's seat.

There are new styling features like the tasteful grille design and trim accents, for instance. And the larger self-adjusting brakes that further reduce upkeep on a car that already has a reputation of coming about as close to perpetual motion as anything on four wheels can get.

The place to get the full details on the '64 is your Chevrolet dealer's. And after you've got them, we hope you'll attend to one further detail yourself. Drive it.

After being exposed to a sharp TV campaign, I went right out and bought a food chopper. I am an impulse buyer. The kind department stores love.

I surely did not need this chopper — it is called a Veg-o-matic and the nudge on it was one of those come-on prices like $9.95. And when you get through with the sales tax you are in for over a saw-buck.

I didn't need it. But the ads were wonderful!

For one thing, this gadget chops French fries like a TV Western puts bullets out of a Colt .45.

Chop! French fries come out of the whole potato in one motion. Chop! Another potato is split in sections. Chop! Pretty soon you have enough to feed the guest list of a hotel. Chop!

That is the problem. I cannot quit chopping and I am running out of potatoes. It is like eating peanuts.

Anyway, we have been eating plenty of French fries lately. We are potato fed.

This is excellent for the potato people — there is a national Potato Chip Week. Did you know that? True. Once I interviewed a lady known as Miss Potato Chips of 19 something-or-other.

She wore a kind of bikini with potato chips glued on it. Very charming sight. All the reporters who interviewed her got a free bag of potato chips.

About potatoes. They had a bad deal in public relations.

At one time, the Scots would not eat them because they were mentioned in the Bible. The Scots ate a pudding made of sheep stomach which I do not recall when I was earning my Sunday school attendance stars. But they would not eat potatoes.

Early day doctors thought potatoes caused many ills. Such as leprosy and rickets, both of which are bad for you.

However, Frederick the Great was all for potatoes. He wanted the people to eat spuds so there would be other goodies for his army. He sent out seed potatoes and — this is quite a commercial idea — he sent a soldier along with the seed potatoes.

The soldier said: "You plant the potatoes or else we plant you."

The potato crop that year was a buster.

Marie Antoinette, the French queen who lost her head, once attended a State dinner wearing a potato flower headdress.

Vodka is made of potatoes. It is a versatile tuber.

This machine also chops onions into beautiful rings. One chop - chop! Potatoes and onions are pretty good when fried together. But I am getting mighty tired of them.

Still I cannot let the chopper alone. That is what TV did to me. I cannot remember the programs. But often wake up at night, unable to get the singing commercial out of my mind.

The chopper had no singing commercial. It was just a gadget and I had to have it. It does things too. Not that I

Human Rights Group Will Meet Thursday

The Governor's Commission on Human Rights will meet in the Statehouse Thursday at 2:30 p.m.

It will be the commission's third meeting since being appointed by Governor Morrison early last summer.

The Rev. James Stewart of the Omaha Roman Catholic Diocese, commission chairman, will hold a news conference at the Cornhusker Hotel at 11 a.m. and again at 5:30 p.m. Thursday.

want to dice anything. But the idea is sensational.

It is this sort of gadgetry that has put men into the kitchen. As soon as you get a gadget in the scatter, a man cannot let it alone.

If he does let it alone, you can be sure he soon gets emergency calls.

"Can you show me how to work this, dear? I don't understand the instructions. I suppose you think I'm terribly stupid but—"

The kitchen is full of mechanical gadgetry. The stove has four automatic timers — most of which go off in the middle of the night like a burglar alarm.

The refrigerator has automatic de-frosting that requires setting dials. The various things you must set on a steam iron makes it look like an airplane instrument board.

Now we have the chopper. Who is the full-time mechanic? You aren't asking that seriously, are you?

Review Of Death Penalty Mandatory

Review by the Nebraska Supreme Court of the death penalty in murder cases is mandatory and automatic even when the condemned has pleaded guilty, according to an attorney general's opinion issued Monday.

The opinion said that LB468, enacted in the regular 1963 legislative session, did not abolish or alter a previous statute requiring automatic review of the murder convictions where the death penalty has been imposed.

LB468 permits the trial court to fix the sentence at death or life imprisonment without a trial if the accused pleads guilty. Previously, the case still had to go to a jury.

The opinion was requested by Douglas County Attorney Donald L. Knowles. It was written by Assistant Atty. Gen. Bernard L. Packett and approved by Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer.

Wire Tappers On Otepka Case Quit

Washington (AP) — Two State Department officials who first denied and then admitted they had installed a listening device in Otto F. Otepka's office have resigned.

This was announced Monday by Department Press Officer Richard I. Phillips who declined to say whether the men were asked to leave.

Phillips said the department has accepted the resignations of John F. Kelly, deputy assistant secretary of state for security, and Elmer D. Hill, head of the division of technical services under Kelly. The resignations are to be effective "at an early date."

David J. Belisle, Kelly's special assistant who also figured in the controversial dismissal of Otepka on insubordination charges, still is the subject of a departmental inquiry, Phillips said.

Otepka was fired Nov. 5 from his job as chief security risk evaluator after State Department investigators accused him of supplying confidential information from the personnel files to an agent of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee.

Otepka is being retained on the payroll pending an appeal. His dismissal brought demands by Congress members for an investigation of charges that Otepka's telephone was tapped.

Kelly and his two aides denied in testimony before the Senate subcommittee last summer that they had installed a tap. The day after Otepka's dismissal, however, and after subcommittee members hinted they had evidence to the contrary, the three asked permission to change their testimony.

The three then wrote letters to the subcommittee acknowledging that a "bug" had been wired to Otepka's office telephone.

"That's the Honor Farm Family," said hotel employees and other guests at the Cornhusker as the McNiels started receiving the special recognition that goes to the family selected each year to typify the best in farming and ranching.

House OKs Bill Containing Money For Base Gutters

Washington (AP) — The House passed and sent to the Senate Monday a $1,562,964,000 appropriation bill to finance military construction programs in the year that started July 1.

Passage came on a 332-5 roll call vote.

Included was $663,000 for Offutt Air Force Base at Omaha. The authorization is for maintenance and administrative facilities.

The bill also includes $30,000 for gutters and downspouts at the Lincoln Air Force Base in Nebraska.

Burney Says He Wants Labeled As Conservative

Hastings (AP) — Lt. Gov. Dwight Burney, a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, said Monday night he wanted to be known as a strong conservative.

Burney, during an interview in Hastings, wore a tie clasp advocating the candidacy of Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater for president on the Republican ticket.

Burney said he would seek the office vigorously after the first of the year, running on his 20 years of political service as a legislator, lieutenant governor and as governor after the death of Ralph G. Brooks.

Lincoln Team In Chicago To Lure Industry

Chicago (UPI) — A four-man industry-seeking team from Lincoln, Neb., began a three-day search in Chicago hopeful of luring some "industrial economic insurance" back to the Cornhusker capital.

The team included John Fraker, Lincoln Chamber of Commerce manager; Duane Vicary, the chamber's industrial manager; Don Slonecker, industrial representative for the Consumers Public Power District of Lincoln, and Donald Parker, president of the Security Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Lincoln.

"This is just a search for some industrial economic insurance," said Fraker. "Lincoln has a real sound economic base and relatively little unemployment."

"We will not visit companies like U.S. Steel, for example, because it would be economically unfeasible for them to build a plant in Lincoln," he said.

"What we will do is visit companies that could expand easily our way such as electronics firms, pharmaceutical firms and the needle trade."

Fraker said the team will visit about 100 firms in Chicago during the three-day visit.

The attending physician said Peery apparently died of a heart attack.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you. COLAVITO PEDDLED TO KANSAS CITY

-BLOCK'S REPORT SOBERS FANS- 'We're Going After Them,' Says Coach

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

A promise out-did the jokes on the audience reaction meter Monday at the weekly Nebraska Extra Point Club Quarterback luncheon.

The promise, "We're going after them," by NU coach Bob Devaney in speaking of Oklahoma brought the crowd into a roaring mood.

"We're going to give it everything we've got," Devaney said in speaking of Saturday's showdown clash for the Big Eight title and the trip to the Orange Bowl on New Year's Day.

"We know this is the best team we've faced all year," he continued. "We must play the very best game our players are capable of and we must eliminate any mistakes."

Scouting Report

But before enthusiasm reached a peak, NU assistant coach King Block delivered the scouting report on the Sooners — a report that began to send fear through the hearts of Husker fans.

Block's report caused Devaney to quip, "I'm glad you didn't say any more. I was getting a little scared myself."

The Husker assistant who scouted the Sooners in their 13-3 win over Missouri Saturday told the luncheon audience he had trouble telling the first team from the second unit on the OU squad.

Shields Stars

"That Larry Shields stole the show with his pass interceptions, his punt return for a touchdown and his other sweep for a touchdown," Block noted. "They also gained a lot of national publicity last week by putting Jim Grisham's ankle in a cast."

"He didn't even limp Saturday," Block exclaimed. "Then they put Grisham on the bench in the fourth quarter to save him for us. And what happens? His replacement, Larry Brown, takes over and becomes the Sooners leading ground gainer for the day."

Devaney said he was hopeful that quarterback Dennis Claridge and fullback Rudy Johnson would be ready to go against Oklahoma, but he indicated that the Huskers were not saving them last week.

"If I had played them Saturday, the humane society would have been on me," Devaney cracked.

Kiffin May Return

The Husker coach said chances were good that tackle Monte Kiffin would be ready and that Bob Hohn was released from the NU student Health Center Monday and probably would be ready.

Speaking of the injuries that have hit the Husker camp this year, Devaney explained, "If anyone had told me that we would have an 8-1 record at this point with Claridge missing three games and other players hurt at key times, I would have suggested that he try some other kind of dope."

In looking back at the Oklahoma State game, the Husker boss refused to blame complacency as a factor in the OSU surge in the final quarter.

"Complacency had nothing to do with it," Devaney said. "Oklahoma State just got its momentum going and played better ball than we did in the fourth quarter."

"There was never any reason to think that we had a terrific advantage over them going into the game," the NU coach continued.

He pointed out that Oklahoma State's starting lineup matched Nebraska's for experience and that the Huskers then lost two key performers — Bob Hohn and John Kirby — early in the contest.

Closed Workouts May Be In Store For NU

Nebraska's gridders may hold their first closed workouts since Bob Devaney took over the Huskers as they prepare this week for the crucial test with Oklahoma.

Devaney began toying with the idea Monday and indicated that if some way could be found to put the practices under wraps the step would be taken.

Kansas City Batting Again

The battle is on once again in Kansas City. It is the yearly, or semi-annual — or even more frequently than that — battle to keep major league baseball in K.C.

For baseball fans in the Lincoln area and in most of Nebraska, the A's afford the best opportunity to see major league baseball, although there are those who will argue the major league label that is attached to it.

The continuing struggle between A's owner Charles O. Finley and the Kansas City city council is almost like a Captain Midnight serial with new twists cropping up with episodic regularity.

Finley not only has feuded with the city council in Kansas City. He has feuded with the Kansas City Star and even shut them off from A's news for a period. He has feuded with other baseball men and probably even with parking lot attendants.

The feeling in Kansas City is that things will never be settled until Finley gives up the A's and there reportedly is a group of Kansas City businessmen who are willing to buy the club if it is ever put up for sale.

Finley has introduced some color into the game with his gimmicks such as the kelly green and gold uniforms he decked his players in the past season, the rabbit which supplies the umpire with baseballs and numerous other gimmicks which have provided color to an otherwise somewhat drab game.

But continual bickering over stadium arrangements and continual talk of moving the team to another city certainly are not designed to bolster ticket sales.

Dallas Being Eyed

Finley reportedly now is eyeing Dallas after having cast a glance at Oakland and most any other city that he could find on a map.

This feeling of "the A's may be slipping from the city" has brought action from the Kansas City city council.

In an open letter to Finley, the city council's baseball committee has offered to lease the Municipal Stadium for $1 a year under a seven-year contract, a set-up identical to what Kansas City gave the Chiefs in getting the American Football League club.

It is the seven-year agreement that has bothered Finley since he does not want to be tied down for such a lengthy period. Besides, then he couldn't threaten to take his marbles and go elsewhere.

The city has also offered to re-imburse Finley for expenditures he has made at the stadium for parking, lighting, restroom and public address improvements along with extra seating that Finley has added.

City officials are so concerned over losing their A's that they are ready to go so far as to ask for Congressional help through Missouri Sen. Stuart Symington, whom they have discussed the situation with, or to seek an injunction to freeze the A's in Kansas City.

These latter two steps would both be drastic moves since baseball has tried to stay clear of any Congressional obligations. It would certainly appear that this is a matter for baseball moguls to consider at their upcoming winter meetings.

And baseball fans in Nebraska, Iowa, and Kansas as well as Missouri have an interest in keeping the A's in Kansas City.

Longhorns Still First; Nebraska Remains 10th

. . . SOONERS DROP NOTCH IN AP POLL

By Associated Press

The Texas Longhorns, needing only a victory over Texas A&M Thanksgiving Day for their first unbeaten and untied season in 43 years, extended their reign to six straight weeks as the nation's No. 1 college football team Monday.

The nation's only major all-winning eleven easily retained its top spot in the Associated Press poll.

Coach Darrell Royal's Cotton Bowl-bound Longhorns were rated first by all but six of the 51 sports writers and broadcasters in this week's poll and received 503 points to 423 for second-ranked Navy. The Midshipmen grabbed all the first place votes that Texas didn't get. Navy outscored Duke in a wild game Saturday, 38-25.

Texas won its ninth straight game, defeating Texas Christian, 17-0, last Saturday.

Not since 1920, when it won all nine games, has a Texas U. team ever enjoyed an unbeaten and untied season. The 1923 squad was undefeated but was tied, 7-7, by Baylor. Last year's eleven also went through the regular season without a loss but was deadlocked by Rice, 14-14.

There were only two changes in the top ten rankings from last week's list. Pittsburgh, impressive in a 28-0 rout of Army Saturday, climbed a notch to fifth place dropping Oklahoma to sixth. The Sooners defeated Missouri, 13-3.

Mississippi, which trounced Tennessee, 20-0, held third place with 359 points. Michigan State, a 12-7 victor over Notre Dame, retained fourth place by a slight margin over Pitt, 305 points to 287.

Behind Oklahoma's 254 points came seventh-place Alabama 222, Illinois 180, Auburn 117 and Nebraska 59.

BAUER TAPPED FOR ORIOLES?

Baltimore (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles will name coach Hank Bauer as manager within the next 24 hours, the Baltimore News-Post reported Monday.

When asked about the report, general manager Lee MacPhail said: "When we do have a manager, we will announce it."

Bauer coached third base for the American League baseball club under manager Billy Hitchcock, who was dismissed at the end of the season.

The news-Post story said Bauer has been the leading candidate for the manager's job since Eddie Stanky, St. Louis Cardinal farm director, turned thumbs down on the job 12 days ago.

NAIA STALLED ON PICKS

Kansas City (AP) — It may be next Saturday before the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics completes its list of contenders for the semi-finals in its football playoff.

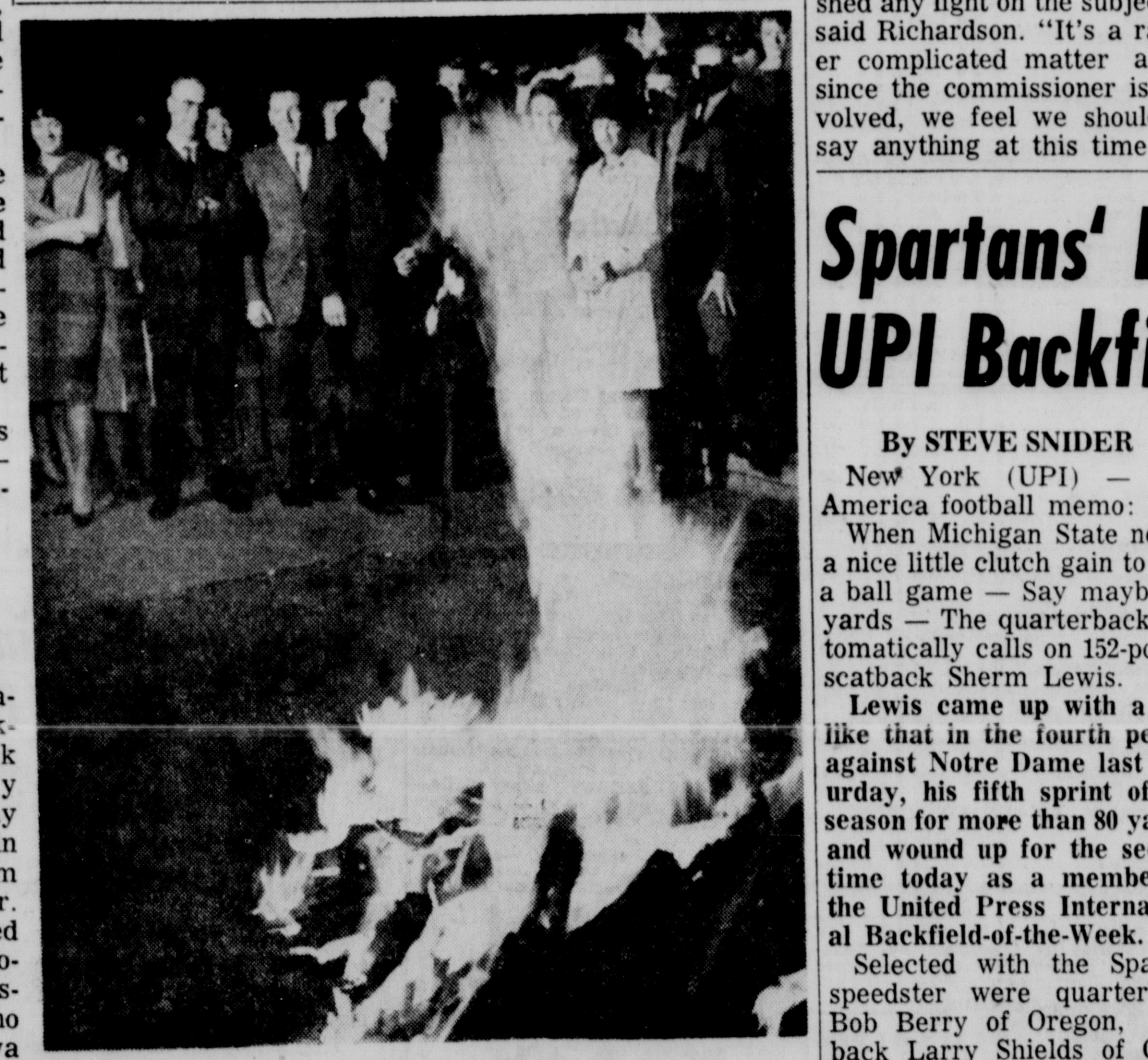

Named last week for the Eastern playoff was St. John's College of Minnesota, undefeated and untied for the last two seasons.

But now the selection committee is stalled. Among the seven contenders, three have yet to complete their schedules. They are Prairie View Tex. A. & M., 7-0; Northwestern Oklahoma State, 9-0; and Southwest Texas State, 9-0.

NAIA officials named the other contenders with complete schedules as College of Emporia Kan., 10-0; Kearney, Neb., State, 9-0; Lewis & Clark Ore., 8-0; and Central Washington State, 9-0.

BONFIRE VIGIL

The members of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity touched off a bonfire Monday night that will continue to burn until Saturday's 2 p.m. kickoff starts the Husker-Sooners game. A round-the-clock fire vigil is planned and other organized houses will chip in wood for the blaze. A rally will be held at the bonfire Friday night in conjunction with the regular NU pep rally. Tigers Receive Infielder Lumpe

. . . PLUS TWO HURLERS

Kansas City (AP) — Rocky Colavito of the Detroit Tigers, one of baseball's top home run sluggers, was traded to the Kansas City Athletics Monday for second basemen Jerry Lumpe and pitchers Dave Wickersham and Ed Rakow.

The Athletics also received righthanded pitcher Bob Anderson and an unannounced sum of cash.

In the last six seasons, Colavito, an outfielder, has hit 222 home runs, more than any slugger in the American League. He has hit 268 round-trippers in a nine-year major league career, five years at Cleveland and four at Detroit.

Other Key

Lumpe, the other key man in the deal, is rated one of the league's outstanding second basemen. He hit .271 last year, the same average as Colavito's, and drove in 59 runs. He also is a top glove man.

Colavito, a member of the American League All-Star team six times, led the loop in total bases in 1959 and 1962 and in slugging percentage in 1958.

He had a career high of 45 home runs and 140 runs batted in during 1961.

Colavito tailed off to 22 homers and 91 runs batted in last season. But A's general manager Pat Friday, in announcing the swap, said he is confident Colavito can stage a comeback next season and produce between 40 and 50 homers. Both Colavito and Lumpe are 30 years old.

'Heavy Price'

"We are paying a heavy price to acquire the power hitting we need, but we feel we have got to take a calculated risk to jack up our offense and we are gambling our young pitching will fill the holes left by Rakow and Wickersham," Friday said.

Wickersham won 12 and lost 15 last season and had an earned run average of 4.06. Rakow was 9-10 with an ERA of 3.98. Both are right-handers.

Friday said Anderson, who was 3-1 with Detroit last season, after spending six years with the Chicago Cubs, may be a very valuable addition to the Kansas City staff.

Colavito was traded to Detroit for outfielder Harvey Kuenn on April 17, 1960.

Tied Record

In 1959 he tied the major league record for most consecutive home runs in a game, four, and in 1961 tied the league mark for the most home runs in a doubleheader, four.

He played on the American League All-Star teams twice in each of 1959, 1961 and 1962. In 1958 and 1960 he led outfielders in double plays.

Colavito also is one of the league's most durable players. He began the 1963 season having played in 422 straight games. He needed 90 more to set a major league record for outfielders. His string was halted at 458 when he failed to make an appearance May 22 against Baltimore in the Tigers' 37th game of 1963.

Friday said Dick Green, who spent most of last season at Portland in the Pacific Coast League, will be one of the leading candidates for the A's second base post being vacated by Lumpe.

Minor League Realignment Stumbles On New Problem

—IL DOESN'T WANT NEW TEAMS—

New York (AP) — The minor league baseball program, apparently streamlined out last year, has struck a snag at the top level with Commissioner Ford Frick right smack in the middle.

The snarled situation centers around the Pacific Coast League's plea to lop off two of its 10 teams and the International League's reluctance to absorb the shunted PCL members.

The International League, which grudgingly agreed to operate with 10 clubs last year, is opposed to expanding to 12 but fears to make a stand because it might offend the commissioner, who made the recommendations.

The International League, through President Tommy Richardson, aired its views to Frick Monday. Neither Frick nor Richardson would disclose the nature of the discussion, but judging from the tone of voice no solution was reached.

"I'm sorry but I just can't shed any light on the subject," said Richardson. "It's a rather complicated matter and since the commissioner is involved, we feel we shouldn't say anything at this time."

Right now the whole thing is in a mess. In realigning the minor league structure last year, Frick designated 20 clubs, armed them with big league working agreements and designated them top minor or Class A. With the fold-up of the American Association, the Pacific Coast and International Leagues were obliged to add two teams.

The International added Indianapolis and Little Rock. The PCL took on a more ambitious program, territorial-wise. It shed Vancouver and accepted Oklahoma City, Denver and Dallas-Fort Worth. This move added a vast amount of air miles, including a 4,000 hop from Dallas to Hawaii.

Beset by varied problems, the PCL reportedly asked the majors not only for more financial help but requested a cutback to eight teams. The majors, at a special meeting in St. Louis, "solved" the problem by proposing the International League expand to 12 clubs, adding Dallas-Fort Worth and Oklahoma City.

"Some of us are still bitter about being forced to accept Indianapolis and Little Rock last year," said a member of the International League's board of directors. "We'd prefer going back to eight clubs if they'd let us."

As a sop, the majors agreed to increase their share of the player's salary and give additional monetary inducements. Under the 1963 plan, the major league club paid $700 a maximum $1,500 monthly salary. Next year it will pay $750.

Ga. Tech Coach Won't Reinstate Banished Player

Atlanta (AP) — End Ted Davis of Georgia Tech, who removed himself from the football team after kicking Auburn back David Rawson in the face in the Tech-Auburn game, will not play against Georgia.

Coach Bobby Dodd spiked rumors Monday that Davis would be reinstated for the Bulldog clash. The 6-1, 225-pound senior has been off the team since the Monday following the Auburn game Oct. 19.

"After careful consideration, I have decided that it will be in the best interests of Georgia Tech that he not play in the Georgia football game here Nov. 30," Dodd said.

There had been rumors that Georgia officials were upset over the possible psychological advantage Tech would have if Davis were reinstated for the one game.

Key Games This Week Will Decide Bowl Clubs

... TEXAS ALREADY HAS COTTON BERTH

By Associated Press
Games at Seattle, Los Angeles and East Lansing, Mich., Saturday will determine the Rose Bowl representatives, but sponsors of the other major bowls probably will wait a week longer to decide their line-ups.

Promoters of the Cotton, Sugar and Orange Bowls said Monday they likely will put off a decision until after the college football games of Nov. 30. The various smaller bowls must wait until the big ones are filled before they can do any plucking.

Only one bowl spot is definitely fixed. Texas, the nation's only unbeaten-untied major power and No. 1 ranked, has clinched a third straight appearance in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas where efforts probably will be made to land Navy, ranked No. 2, for the year's "dream game."

In the only other major development over the weekend, Mississippi's Johnny Vaught expressed preference to play in the Orange Bowl at Miami over the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans.

As potential Southeastern Conference champion, unbeaten but once-tied Mississippi had been figured on as a Sugar Bowl certainty since it is traditional for the Southeastern winner to play at New Orleans.

Orange Bowl officials, however, said Mississippi was just one of several teams being considered. Miami normally likes to land an Eastern opponent for the Big Eight Conference champion, which means Navy and Pittsburgh top the list of desired teams.

Here's the bowl situation:
ROSE BOWL—Washington, 3-1 in the Big Six, has the edge over Southern California and UCLA, each 2-1. If it can beat Washington State in the final game Saturday at Seattle, a slipup by the Huskies would throw the nod toward the Southern Cal-UCLA winner at Los Angeles. The opponent will be the winner of the Big Ten title game between fourth-ranked Michigan State and No. 8 Illinois at East Lansing, Mich.

SUGAR BOWL—Mississippi, 7-0-1, should have first pick if it can get by Mississippi State in their traditional game Nov. 30. If Ole Miss is tapped by the Orange Bowl, Alabama and Auburn, each 7-1, would be favored for the host spot. Marshall David, president of the Sugar Bowl said, "We are considering all the leading teams." Pittsburgh is reported to have the inside track.

ORANGE BOWL—One place is committed to the Big Eight champion, to be decided by the game between sixth-ranked Oklahoma, 7-1, and 10th-ranked Nebraska, 8-1, at Lincoln, Neb., Saturday. The other berth is wide open, with Navy, Pitt and Mississippi heading the list. Positions of Pitt and Alabama are weakened by the fact they play games in Miami Nov. 30 (Pitt vs. Miami) and Dec. 7 (Alabama vs. Miami).

The loser of the Big Eight title game at Lincoln—Oklahoma or Nebraska—likely will land in the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston. The Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, which has been growing in stature, will have a shot at leading teams, such as Alabama, Auburn, Pitt, Penn State and Syracuse.

Other bowl prospects are Mississippi State, the team that broke Auburn's winning string; Memphis State, which tied Mississippi; North Carolina and North Carolina State, each with only two defeats.

—AD ROYAL ANNOUNCES— Texas U Inaugurates Integration In Athletics

Austin, Tex. (AP) — In a matter-of-fact way Darrel Royal, Texas athletic director and coach, announced Monday a historic move—complete and immediate athletic integration at the state's largest university.

This makes Texas the first school in the eight-member Southwest Conference to take this action.

"The Athletic Council met this morning and we decided that any Negro student who meets academic and athletic requirements is eligible to try out for any sport as of this moment."

"We will recruit those Negroes that fit into our program," Royal said.

This means that a Negro could compete in basketball this season if he is already enrolled in the university.

Texas now has about 300 Negroes and 150 to 200 are male students.

The first recruiting of Negro athletes, Royal said, would be for football. This would have to wait until the athlete has played his final high school football game.

He did not mention any particular prospects, but said his staff had "a pretty good line on recruiting."

Other teams in the conference, all with segregated athletic programs, include Texas A&M, Rice, SMU, TCU, Texas Tech, Baylor and Arkansas.

Asked about possible housing for Negro athletes, Royal admitted that Moore-Hill Hall, the athletic dormitory, still is segregated pending the outcome of a lawsuit in federal court which would force racial integration of all university dormitories.

"Moore-Hill Hall is not integrated," Royal said, "but we have single boys who play sports living in other residences now."

Negro students have taken part in intramural sports at Texas since they were first admitted to the school in 1950.

Key Games This Week Will Decide Bowl Clubs

... TEXAS ALREADY HAS COTTON BERTH

By Associated Press
Games at Seattle, Los Angeles and East Lansing, Mich., Saturday will determine the Rose Bowl representatives, but sponsors of the other major bowls probably will wait a week longer to decide their line-ups.

Promoters of the Cotton, Sugar and Orange Bowls said Monday they likely will put off a decision until after the college football games of Nov. 30. The various smaller bowls must wait until the big ones are filled before they can do any plucking.

Only one bowl spot is definitely fixed. Texas, the nation's only unbeaten-untied major power and No. 1 ranked, has clinched a third straight appearance in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas where efforts probably will be made to land Navy, ranked No. 2, for the year's "dream game."

In the only other major development over the weekend, Mississippi's Johnny Vaught expressed preference to play in the Orange Bowl at Miami over the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans.

As potential Southeastern Conference champion, unbeaten but once-tied Mississippi had been figured on as a Sugar Bowl certainty since it is traditional for the Southeastern winner to play at New Orleans.

Orange Bowl officials, however, said Mississippi was just one of several teams being considered. Miami normally likes to land an Eastern opponent for the Big Eight Conference champion, which means Navy and Pittsburgh top the list of desired teams.

Here's the bowl situation:
ROSE BOWL—Washington, 3-1 in the Big Six, has the edge over Southern California and UCLA, each 2-1, if it can beat Washington State in the final game Saturday at Seattle. A slipup by the Huskies would throw the nod toward the Southern Cal-UCLA winner at Los Angeles. The opponent will be the winner of the Big Ten title game between fourth-ranked Michigan State and No. 8 Illinois at East Lansing, Mich.

SUGAR BOWL—Mississippi, 7-0-1, should have first pick if it can get by Mississippi State in their traditional game Nov. 30. If Ole Miss is tapped by the Orange Bowl, Alabama and Auburn, each 7-1, would be favored for the host spot. Marshall David, president of the Sugar Bowl said, "We are considering all the leading teams." Pittsburgh is reported to have the inside track.

ORANGE BOWL—One place is committed to the Big Eight champion, to be decided by the game between sixth-ranked Oklahoma, 7-1, and 10th-ranked Nebraska, 8-1, at Lincoln, Neb., Saturday. The other berth is wide open, with Navy, Pitt and Mississippi heading the list. Positions of Pitt and Alabama are weakened by the fact they play games in Miami Nov. 30 (Pitt vs. Miami) and Dec. 7 (Alabama vs. Miami).

The loser of the Big Eight title game at Lincoln—Oklahoma or Nebraska—likely will land in the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston. The Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, which has been growing in stature, will have a shot at leading teams, such as Alabama, Auburn, Pitt, Penn State and Syracuse.

Other bowl prospects are Mississippi State, the team that broke Auburn's winning string; Memphis State, which tied Mississippi; North Carolina and North Carolina State, each with only two defeats.

BEARS FAN INVADERS RINK

Waving his hat and a Chicago Bears football pennant, an over-exuberant fan is led off the ice by the referee during the Toronto-Chicago hockey game Sunday night. Apparently he also was a fan at the Packers-Bears football game earlier in the day which the Bears won, 26-7.

Merely "Shrinking" Hemorrhoids is Not Enough!

Read how a clinically proven formula now brings more complete, longer lasting relief!

If you suffer from hemorrhoids, you have probably discovered that products which promise to "shrink" hemorrhoids do not always give prolonged relief. For, as doctors know, merely "shrinking" may not relieve discomfort.

That's why an advanced formula from Mentholatum Laboratories—M.P.O.—answers the need for a more complete home treatment of hemorrhoids. With more medically accepted pain-relieving ingredients than the leading hemorrhoid preparation, M.P.O. not only works to (1) shrink swollen areas, (2) reduce itching and (3) relieve pain, but also provides three important extra benefits:

First, M.P.O. is homogenized for faster absorption of its relief-bringing ingredients.

Second, M.P.O. fights infectious bacteria with the proven germ killer, Hexachlorophene.

Third, M.P.O. assures longer lasting relief through an exclusive stabilized base which prolongs the contact of soothing medication with the inflamed tissue.

Middies' Hardin Rates Staubach Finest Ever

... COMPARED TO WYATT EARP

New York (AP) — Coach Wayne Hardin beat the drums loudly for his Navy quarterback Roger Staubach, as a candidate for the Heisman Award Monday when he called Roger "the finest I've ever seen, without any reservations."

Asked if that included the professionals as well as the collegians, Hardin replied, "This boy is as good as anybody who ever played the game. I have seen Johnny Unitas and Y. A. Tittle."

Hardin was in town to talk to the football writers about the Army game, Nov. 30 at Philadelphia. He will be shooting for a fifth straight victory over the Cadets since he took over as head coach.

"Army is the only game we're concerned about all year" said Hardin. "It always is a life and death matter. If we lost to Army it will ruin a real fine season. I am real proud of our team. We have played well enough to win every game (they have an 8-1 record). But in an Army-Navy game, you forget the scores of other games. It is dog eat dog. I know our boys will be trying their level best to make it five in a row."

Hardin had words of praise for all his players but he reserved the superlatives for Staubach. The junior from Cincinnati has completed 101 of 150 passes for 1,375 yards and seven touchdowns and a 67.3 completion percentage. He also has carried 144 times for 363 yards and eight touchdowns for a total offense yardage of 1,738.

"Each week he makes a play that everybody says can't be topped," said Hardin. "Then the next week he tops it. Last Saturday against Duke he dropped back to pass, jumped up in the air and apparently was going to be thrown for a loss of eight or 10 yards. He came down with the ball under his arm. The man hit him but he bounced off his shoulder and took off for a 45-yard net gain. If he a little more speed he might have had six points."

"Roger is a quiet, modest boy. He reminds me of Wyatt Earp and he is going to be a legend in our time. I have seen boys who can pass better, run better, call plays better or scramble better. But never did I see anybody who can do all these things as well."

K-State Existing In Dream World

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State's football players still aren't fully recovered from the shock of being met by 2,000 rooters at the airport on their return from beating Iowa State, 21-10.

Their first victory in 26 big eight conference games gave the Wildcats a tremendous lift for Oklahoma State Saturday.

Coach Doug Weaver said he won't change any of his personnel for the Oklahoma State game. "I'm not being superstitious," he said. "It's just that I think everybody played well."

Catholic Declaration On Anti-Semitism Assailed

Vatican City (AP) — A Vatican Ecumenical Council declaration aimed at anti-Semitism was assailed Monday by a conservative Italian cardinal and three Catholic patriarchs from the Middle East.

The opposition was voiced on the floor of St. Peter's Basilica before the 2,300 council fathers assembled from around the world.

The Middle East prelates said they were afraid the document could mean misunderstanding and difficulties for Christians in the Arab world.

The opposition raised the possibility that the proposal—now a separate chapter in the topic on Christian unity—might be cut out of the document and treated in some other way.

Some specialists with the Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity said that should this happen the proposal might never be taken up again.

All Men To Blame

The chapter on the Jews declares that all mankind—not Jews alone—shares responsibility for the death of Christ. The world's Jewish leaders have praised the declaration.

The document ran into fire almost from the moment the council took up the Christian unity schema.

Nearly all the nine prelates who took the floor found fault with some parts of the schema.

Joseph Elmer Cardinal Ritter of St. Louis was an exception. He voiced strong praise, calling the Christian unity document a practical result of Roman Catholic Church renewal. Renewal and Christian unity are major goals of the council.

The St. Louis prelate made no mention of the declaration on the Jews.

Opposition to the declaration came from Ernest Cardinal Ruffini of Sicily and from Patriarchs Ignace Gabriel Cardinal Tappouni of Antioch, of the Syrians, Stephanos I Sidarouss of Alexandria, Egypt, of the Copts, and Maximos IV Saigh of Antioch, of the Melchites.

No Place

All four said the proposal had no place in a document on Christians. Cardinal Ruffini asked:

"If the document mentions Jews, why is there no mention of other faiths, which are often less opposed to the church than the Jews and more open to conversion than the Protestants?"

Jews are the only non-Christians mentioned in the declaration, but the text says the same principles of mutual respect called for in the proposal are to apply to all other faiths.

'NEXT PRESIDENT' ACCEPTS

Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, 52-year-old former minister of the interior, stresses a point as he addresses a crowd of 70,000 in Mexico City Stadium in accepting nomination as presidential candidate of the Institutional Revolution Party in next year's election. Nomination by the PRI is tantamount to election.

SCHOOL KIDS SEEK LOST POODLE

Corby, England (AP) — Nine school children went back to classes Monday after traveling 225 miles and knocking on 93 doors in search of a lost poodle.

In this nation of dog lovers, their effort — though unsuccessful — was, perhaps, the most unique dog hunt to date. What happened was this:

On Oct. 23, Mrs. Haland Taylor, 48, and her husband journeyed to London to attend a dog race. They left their black poodle, Tiddy, in a car. The window was slightly open and when they got back, Tiddy was gone.

Postman Saw Dog

A postman in the big London borough of Wandsworth reported seeing the dog.

After Mrs. Taylor made two unsuccessful trips to London trying to find her pet, she called on the Corby Faithful Friends Guild, an organization dedicated to helping dogs.

Mrs. Kitt Leggett, secretary of the Faithful Friends, asked for volunteers to go to London to look for Tiddy. Nine children came forward.

With the dog's owner paying the expenses, Mrs. Leggett and the children drove the 112 miles to London.

They knocked on 93 doors and stopped scores of people in the street, asking if anyone had seen Tiddy.

Eighty-seven householders said they hadn't seen the dog. Five said they didn't know if they had or not. One man threatened to call the police.

Magnificent Day

"We didn't find Tiddy," said

Mrs. Leggett, "but it was a magnificent day, and all Wandsworth knows about it. We have done the basic work that will locate him, eventually."

Said Mrs. Taylor: "I greatly appreciate what the children have done. I have no children and I miss Tiddy dreadfully."

In three years, the Corby Faithful Friends have found 30 lost dogs.

Luger Pistol, Rubber Hose Piece Introduced As Murder Evidence

Minneapolis (AP) — The German Luger pistol and a piece of rubber hose allegedly used by the killer in the bludgeoning death of Mrs. Carol Thompson were introduced into evidence Monday at the first degree murder trial of her husband.

Both items were introduced when Richard L. Sharp, long-time Minneapolis police character, was on the witness stand.

T. Eugene Thompson, 35-year-old St. Paul attorney, is on trial for engineering the slaying of his wife last March 6. Love for another woman and a rich insurance pot were the motives, the state contends.

'Looks The Same'

Sharp identified the pistol as one stolen in a burglary in which he admits he participated. "Yes, it looks like the same gun I gave to Norman Mastrian," Sharp testified.

Sharp said he never saw the gun again after he gave it to Mastrian a few days before Mrs. Thompson was slain. He said he was offered "$50 in a few days" for the weapon, but did not disclose to the jury if he ever was paid. Mastrian is the accused middle-man in the case.

The witness said he was offered $2,000 to kill a woman and that the ante would be raised to $3,000 if he could make it look accidental.

But, Sharp said, he rejected the offer.

He said Mastrian told him he could shoot the woman or throw some dynamite into her car.

Churchgoing Mother

Sharp quoted Mastrian as saying the person to be killed was "a churchgoer and mother of four kids." He also quoted Mastrian as telling him, "There was a bunch of insurance . . . she had to be killed within a few days."

A piece of rubber hose 12 inches long and an inch thick was also introduced.

Sharp testified that the hose was taken from the glove compartment of a car by Mastrian during a conversation he had with Mastrian.

If he did the job, Sharp testified, he was to hit "her" on the back of the head. "He told me to take her to the bathroom and drown her in the bathtub," Sharp said.

Underworld Payoffs

Earlier Monday, Sheldon Morris, the natty ex-convict charged as an accessory in the case, told of alleged underworld payoffs in the case and detailed a threat directed at one murder suspect by another.

The glib Morris, seldom faltering on dates and details, spelled out three money exchanges which likely will be key points in the prosecution case.

Two of the payoffs went to Dick W. C. Anderson, the ex-Marine tabbed by the state as the man who did the actual killing. Morris said he delivered $800 to Anderson nine or 10 days after the slaying and passed another $1,500 on April 15.

From Mastrian

Both payments came from Mastrian, said Morris, who lived in Mastrian's house and has testified to dozens of details in the alleged murder arrangements.

Morris also told of being in a pancake house on March 15 when a St. Paul attorney delivered an envelope for Mastrian — an envelope later shown to contain $2,500.

The state says it will show Thompson shipped the $2,500 to Mastrian for his brokerage work in setting up the killing.

Hoa Hao Guerrillas Stream Out Of Jungle To Join New Viet Nam Junta

Salmon, Viet Nam (AP)—Large numbers of Hoa Hao guerrillas streamed out of their jungle strongholds Monday and rallied to the new government. For years they have fought both U.S.-backed Vietnamese forces and the Communist Viet Cong.

American sources put their numbers at more than 700; other reliable reports said 1,200 Hoa Haos in all had decided to support the junta which overthrew the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem Nov. 1. Diem claimed he had smashed the rebels in 1956.

Hoa Hao officers were quoted as saying they want to unite with the government in the war against the Viet Cong.

Non-Communist
The non-Communist Hoa Haos were the second rebellious guerrilla group to quit their fight against the Saigon government within the past week. Gao Dai guerrillas, members of a religious sect that worships French novelist Victor Hugo, returned to their capital of Tay Ninh Friday from exile in neighboring Cambodia. Their leader said they approved of the new junta but did not know whether they would participate in South Viet Nam's affairs and its war against the Communist guerrillas.

The Hoa Hao guerrillas were said to have surrendered large supplies of heavy weapons and small arms used in holding out against

Auto Crash Kills Former Bailiff Of Nebraska Court

Ellsworth, Kan. (UPI)—State Sen. Clark Kuppinger, R-Prairie Village, was injured fatally Monday in a car-panel truck collision eight miles east of here on U.S. 40.

Kuppinger died at Veterans Memorial Hospital about an hour after the accident. The truck driver, Lloyd D. Risi, 41, Mankato, Minn., was injured critically. He was taken to the same hospital.

Kuppinger, 44, was serving his first term in the Senate. He had been a member of the House of Representatives for five terms.

Born in Texas in 1918, Kuppinger moved to Kansas in 1947 after being in the service for five years during World War II.

He attended both the Universities of Nebraska and Michigan and served as bailiff of the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Kuppinger was a member of the firm of Morrison, Hecker, Cozard and Morrison in Kansas City, Mo.

Kuppinger was married and had two sons.

led to believe all these years they were fighting the Viet Cong actually have been tangling with the Hoa Hao in that area," a U.S. official said.

'Big Step'
"Actually, the Viet Cong has never been able to infiltrate that area very successfully because the Hoa Hao has jumped on them as hard as the Hoa Hao has hit Diem units. They've always wanted the area for themselves. If they all rally to the new government, it will be a tremendous step forward."

Talks between Hoa Hao officers and government officials were reported to have been completed successfully Saturday at Chao Phay, 110 miles west of Saigon in Giang province.

The first 150 guerrillas crossed government lines Sunday and the remainder are expected to do so within three or four days.

The Hoa Hao is a quasi-religious military organization regarded as a Buddhist splinter group. The spiritual leader of the cult, Ba Cut, spread the legend that he was immortal. French colonial authorities, and then the Diem government, tried to rally Ba Cut to the national forces. He agreed repeatedly but later backed down.

He finally was captured by Diem forces and publicly beheaded July 13, 1956. His organization and army then went underground.

G.I. Airport Funds Included In House Bill

Grand Island (AP)—Word was received from Rep. Dave Martin, R-Nebr., Monday that a military appropriation bill reaching the floor of the House Monday afternoon carries several million dollars for work on the Grand Island Municipal Airport.

Martin said the appropriation will be for the dispersal program which will rotate fighter-interceptor aircraft to airports and bases that do not have a combat mission.

The 236th fighter-interceptor squadron at Richards-Gebauer Air Force Base near Kansas City will use the Grand Island base, Martin said, and will rotate to Grand Island on temporary duty after the necessary construction is completed.

The Air Force concept is to rotate personnel and aircraft for short periods of temporary duty. Military personnel will stand at the alert during their stay at the dispersal stations such as Grand Island. Dependents will remain at the home base.

Martin said the exact amount of the appropriation is classified information at present, but he was authorized to state that several million dollars would be involved.

Quarters, office facilities and other support for the personnel will be furnished by the 9528th Air Force Reserve

Recovery Squadron, which is located at the Grand Island Airport, a reserve unit spokesman said.

The 9528th is commanded by Lt. Col. Fred E. Daubert of Grand Island.

Corn Harvest Is Speediest Ever In State

Nebraska's corn harvest this fall has been the speediest of record, government crop observers reported Monday.

Only five per cent of the crop remained to be harvested, the lowest unfinished percentage for this date since records were started, according to the weekly crop report of the State-Federal Division of Agriculture Statistics.

Moisture content of corn has dropped one percentage point to 15, while grain sorghum, now virtually all harvested, has maintained a moisture content of 13%.

The castor bean harvest is under way; most sugar beets are out of the ground, and about 90% of the safflower crop is harvested.

Cooler temperatures, meanwhile, have slowed the growth of the unusually rank wheat crop, thus helping conserve the limited soil moisture supply.

The lower temperatures also retarded the development of leaf rust.

Rain is needed if wheat is going to hold its present condition, the report said.

The amount of feed left in pastures is declining and much of the grass is dry and brittle, although generally adequate for current livestock needs.

Picked corn and harvested milo fields, and wheat fields are offering a huge feed supply and many cattle are being moved into these fields.

Grand Island 47 East Norfolk 03
North Platte 27 West Valentine 19
Imperial 13 Scottsbluff 10
Sidney 02

Waterloo, Iowa (AP)—A student presentation of the play, "The Imaginary Invalid," was postponed for a week by Orange High School because the lead temporarily became the real thing.

Hoa Hao Guerrillas Stream Out Of Jungle To Join New Viet Nam Junta

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP)—Large numbers of Hoa Hao guerrillas streamed out of their jungle strongholds Monday and rallied to the new government. For years they have fought both U.S.-backed Vietnamese forces and the Communist Viet Cong.

American sources put their numbers at more than 700; other reliable reports said 1,200 Hoa Haos in all had decided to support the junta which overthrew the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem Nov. 1. Diem claimed he had smashed the rebels in 1956.

Hoa Hao officers were quoted as saying they want to unite with the government in the war against the Viet Cong.

Non-Communist

The non-Communist Hoa Haos were the second rebellious guerrilla group to quit their fight against the Saigon government within the past week. Gao Dai guerrillas, members of a religious sect that worships French novelist Victor Hugo, returned to their capital of Tay Ninh Friday from exile in neighboring Cambodia. Their leader said they approved of the new junta but did not know whether they would participate in South Viet Nam's affairs and its war against the Communist guerrillas.

The Hoa Hao guerrillas were said to have surrendered large supplies of heavy weapons and small arms used in holding out against

Auto Crash Kills Former Bailiff Of Nebraska Court

Ellsworth, Kan. (UPI)—State Sen. Clark Kuppinger, R-Prairie Village, was injured fatally Monday in a car-panel truck collision eight miles east of here on U.S. 40.

Kuppinger died at Veterans Memorial Hospital about an hour after the accident. The truck driver, Lloyd D. Risi, 41, Mankato, Minn., was injured critically. He was taken to the same hospital.

Kuppinger, 44, was serving his first term in the Senate. He had been a member of the House of Representatives for five terms.

Born in Texas in 1918, Kuppinger moved to Kansas in 1947 after being in the service for five years during World War II.

He attended both the Universities of Nebraska and Michigan and served as bailiff of the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Kuppinger was a member of the firm of Morrison, Heckler, Cozard and Morrison in Kansas City, Mo.

Kuppinger was married and had two sons.

led to believe all these years they were fighting the Viet Cong actually had been tangling with the Hoa Hao in that area," a U.S. official said.

'Big Step'

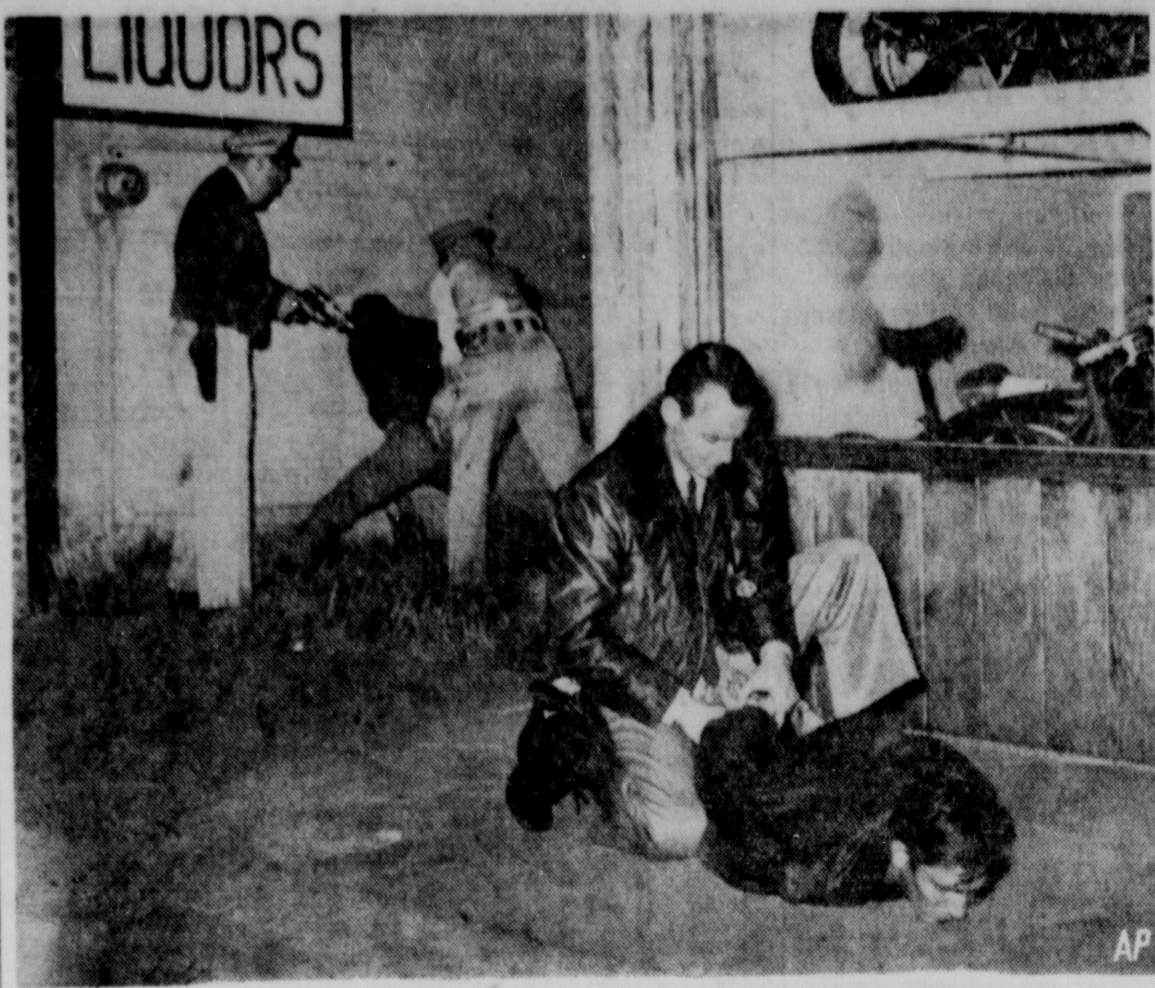

"Actually, the Viet Cong has never been able to infiltrate that area very successfully because the Hoa Hao has jumped on them as hard as the Hoa Hao has hit Diem units. They've always wanted the area for themselves. If they ally with the new government, it will be a tremendous step forward."

Talks between Hoa Hao officers and government officials were reported to have been completed successfully Saturday at Chao Phay, 110 miles west of Saigon in Giang province.

The first 150 guerrillas crossed government lines Sunday and the remainder are expected to do so within three or four days.

The Hoa Hao is a quasi-religious military organization regarded as a Buddhist splinter group. The spiritual leader of the cult, Ba Cut, spread the legend that he was immortal. French colonial authorities, and then the Diem government, tried to rally Ba Cut to the national forces. He agreed repeatedly but later backed down.

Publicly Beheaded He finally was captured by Diem forces and publicly beheaded July 13, 1956. His organization and army then went underground.

BURGLARY SUSPECTS HANDCUFFED

Albany, N.Y., police Sgt. Emil Zugoni, gun drawn, aids patrolman Gerald Martin with one burglary suspect while officer Mel Boyd handcuffs the other. Police say the brothers, William, 22, and Emmatt DeShelia, 21, of San Francisco, were nabbed as they emerged from an Albany tavern at 4 a.m. Monday with money, liquor and cigars.

G.I. Airport Funds Included In House Bill

Grand Island (AP)—Word was received from Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb., Monday that a military appropriation bill reaching the floor of the House Monday afternoon carries several million dollars for work on the Grand Island Municipal Airport.

Martin said the appropriation will be for the dispersal program which will rotate fighter-interceptor aircraft to airports and bases that do not have a combat mission.

The 326th fighter-interceptor squadron at Richards-Gebauer Air Force Base near Kansas City will use the Grand Island base, Martin said, and will rotate to Grand Island on temporary duty after the necessary construction is completed.

The Air Force concept is to rotate personnel and aircraft for short periods of temporary duty. Military personnel will stand at the alert during their stay at the dispersal stations such as Grand Island. Dependents will remain at the home base.

Martin said the exact amount of the appropriation is classified information at present, but he was authorized to state that several million dollars would be involved. Quarters, office facilities and other support for the personnel will be furnished by the 9528th Air Force Reserve

Recovery Squadron, which is located at the Grand Island Airport, a reserve unit spokesman said.

The 9528th is commanded by Lt. Col. Fred E. Daubert of Grand Island.

Corn Harvest Is Speediest Ever In State

Nebraska's corn harvest this fall has been the speediest of record, government crop observers reported Monday.

Only five per cent of the crop remained to be harvested, the lowest unfinished percentage for this date since records were started, according to the weekly crop report of the State-Federal Division of Agriculture Statistics.

Moisture content of corn has dropped one percentage point to 15, while grain sorghum, now virtually all harvested, has maintained a moisture content of 13%.

The castor bean harvest is under way; most sugar beets are out of the ground, and about 90% of the safflower crop is harvested.

Cooler temperatures, meanwhile, have slowed the growth of the unusually rank wheat crop, thus helping conserve the limited soil moisture supply.

The lower temperatures also retarded the development of leaf rust.

Rain is needed if wheat is going to hold its present condition, the report said.

The amount of feed left in pastures is declining and much of the grass is dry and brittle, although generally adequate for current livestock needs.

Picked corn and harvested milo fields, and wheat fields are offering a huge feed supply and many cattle are being moved into these fields.

Rainfall throughout Nebraska during the week ending Monday included:

Mangiamelli Will Back Legalized Gambling In State

Omaha (UPI)—Tony Mangiamelli, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said he will campaign on a platform calling for legalized gambling in the state.

Mangiamelli said the gambling would bring in tax monies to provide for better government and better roads.

"There has been an awful lot of talk about sin and gambling throughout the state of Nebraska," Mangiamelli said. "What is bad and what is good for the state of Nebraska remains in the hands of the people."

"A position as great as the governorship of the state must be handled as such that it would make easier the job of taxes and burdens the public has now."

Imaginary Invalid Temporarily Real

Waterloo, Iowa (AP)—A student presentation of the play, "The Imaginary Invalid," was postponed for a week by Orange High School because the lead temporarily became the real thing.

Sir Alec Happy, Wins First Vote Of Confidence

London (UPI) Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home won his first vote of confidence in the House of Commons Monday night when his Conservatives fought off a major onslaught by the Labor Party on the government's pre-election policies.

A Labor censure motion on the government's housing policy was defeated by 340 votes to 243, a government majority of 97.

The vote of confidence was particularly satisfying for the 60-year-old prime minister because the majority was close to the maximum possible of 100.

Climax

It climaxed a debate in which the Laborites sought to condemn the government for domestic policies on housing, slum clearance and land prices.

Labor offered two censure motions against government policy outlined in the queen's speech from the throne which opened the new session of Parliament Nov. 12.

The second no confidence motion, on the government's scientific policy, is to be debated and voted on Tuesday.

'Inadequate'

The Labor censure motion took the form of an amendment to the government policy statement which said the queen's "gracious speech" contains "no proposals to deal adequately with problems of overcrowding, homelessness and slums, or to deal with profiteering in land prices, interest rates for housing purposes, or leasehold reform."

Moving the amendment, Labor Member Michael Stewart challenged whether the government's housing policy was capable of achieving the announced Conservative target of 400,000 new dwellings a year for the whole of Great Britain.

He quoted figures to dispute the government claim that more houses were being built now than at any time since the war. He said the government claim that the slum clearance rate had been doubled was "mystifying for anyone who has studied the problem."
